Sub-Killer Linked To Pacific Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may have fired a nuclear missile that the Navy claims can seek out and kill an enemy submarine within an eight-mile range.

The first underwater explosion of the current U.S. nuclear test series was one of two blasts detonated Thursday in the Pacific.

Other From Plane

It followed the air burst of a more powerful nuclear device dropped from an airplane, believed to be a B52 bomber, in the vicinity of Christmas Island.

The two shots—the first one-day doubleheader of the Dominic series—were the eighth and ninth of the tests which began April 25.

The underwater burst was described as a low yield shot, meaning it had the explosive equivalent of less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

The Defense Department said only that it was fired in the eastern Pacific, several hundred miles from the closest land.

There have been reliable reports that either ASROC or SUBROC — antisubmarine weapons—would be tested with a nuclear charge.

Already Operational

ASROC is a 15-foot missile designed to be fired from destroyers, cruisers, or frigates. It already is operational and about 150 ships of the fleet are due to be armed with them within the next few years.

When fired, the 1,000-pound ASROC speeds through the air to the target area, then hits the water and homes in on enemy submarines by following their sounds. Experts say it is capable of destroying an enemy submarine at ranges up to about eight miles.

The SUBROC, another powerful weapon, still is in development.

Hazards Unlikely

It is a guided missile designed to be fired from a submerged submarine's torpedo tubes or from the surface. The missile travels through the air, then re-enters the water for the kill.

The Defense Department said it expects no hazard from radioactive contamination of fish or other a life as a resul ayotrfd' eteems contamination of fish or other sea life as a result of yesterday's underwater blast.

Carpenter Shot Due For May 19

Problem Is Minor, Same as Glenn's

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The scheduled orbital flight of astronaut Malcom Scott Carpenter has slipped two days to May 19 because of trouble with the automatic control system in his space capsule.

Continues Preparations

Officials reported that the problem was minor but required extra time to correct. Difficulty with the control system plagued the orbital flight of both Enos the chimpanzee, and astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Carpenter, meanwhile, continued preparations for the flight, which is slated to be a three-orbit mission like Glenn's.

At Boulder, Colo., Carpenter's mother spoke with pride and confidence of her son's mission.

Mrs. Florence Carpenter said "The magnificence of the experience he is going to have is so great that it would minimize—it would erase—any apprehension I might have."

Mrs. Carpenter, frail but articulate, was in high spirits at a press conference Thursday.

"Most people don't like to hear about other people's children, although they enjoy talking about their own," she said. "Scott's selection as an astronaut has given me freedom to talk about him all I choose, and I enjoy that."

Convict Doctors In Quiz Selling, Leniency Urged

NEW YORK (AP)—Two physicians were found guilty Friday night of possessing and conspiring to sell questions to a state medical licensing examination. The jury recommended leniency.

Dr. Lucio J. Pepe, 40, a resident physician at Brooklyn Doctors Hospital, and Dr. Pietro D'Alba, 36, of The Bronx were convicted by a jury of nine men and three women.

Judge Thomas Dickens of General Sessions Court paroled both doctors pending sentencing June 12. They face a minimum sentence of 30 days in prison or a fine of $50 on each of six counts. The maximum sentence could be an indefinite term in prison and a $500 fine.

The indictment charged the pair with possessing and conspiring to sell for $10,000 last June the questions and answers for the State Regents examination for physicians.

The State Department of Education,, which administers the tests, drew up a new set of questions when it was alerted to the conspiracy.

Two other doctors were indicted in the conspiracy. One, Dr. Luigi Baviello, 35, of The Bronx, has pleaded guilty to three counts of the indictment and is awaiting sentencing. He testified as a prosecution witness in the trial of Pepe and D'Alba.

The other, Dr. Stiles D. Ezell, 54, of Loudonville, is awaiting trial. He is a former secretary

Goldberg Aide Resigns, Gift From Estes Cited

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lightning from the Billie Sol Estes storm struck high up in the Kennedy Administration Thursday night. Assistant Secretary of Labor Jerry R. Holleman resigned, saying he had accepted $1,000 from the indicted Texas financier.

In a letter delivered to President Kennedy, Holleman revealed the gift from Estes—whose wheeling and dealing with government farm programs and officials is being investiated by two conressional committees and by four grand juries in Texas.

$20,000 Salary Not Enough

He said he took the money from Estes, a friend for 10 years, because he was having trouble making ends meet on his government salary of $20,000 a year.

"He offered to help me out by a personal gift," said the 43-year-old Holleman. "I accepted this gift."

Holleman related that he accepted the money in January "before I knew anything about Mr. Estes' involvements." And, he added, "The gift has no connection with any of Mr. Estes' interests or my responsibilities. This was entirely a personal matter."

But, Holleman said in his letter to the President, "I realize at the same time, that the circumstances which have developed make it inevitable that this incident will be misunderstood and that it will be embarrassing to me personally. I am not going to let any of this embarrassment affect anyone else, particularly you and Secretary Goldberg (Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg)."

Regrettable: Goldberg

Goldberg announced the resignation had been accepted and said:

"It is regrettable that this has happened. Under the circumstances, Mr. Holleman has taken the proper course of action."

Holleman's resignation was the latest development in the swift-moving and sensational case involving Estes. The 37-year-old onetime Pecos farm boy built a huge financial empire on cut-rate sales of liquid fertilizer, government grain storage payments, cotton allotments and mortgages on allegedly nonexistent fertilizer tanks. He has since declared himself bankrupt.

Hercules Talks Go On, Strike Enters 13th Day

Management and unionized employes of Hercules Powder Company were still trying to negotiate a new contract today at Freeman press time as a strike at the plant continued for the 13th day.

The company and Local 13226, District 50, United Mine Workers of America are deadlocked on one issue, compulsory arbitration. Today's negotiations started at 10 a. m.

D. C. Parker, works manager at Port Ewen, said Friday that "in an attempt to bring about a prompt settlement of the strike, we have proposed to arbitrate discharge cases at the request of the union. All other grievances would be handled under the present contract provisions. We feel this is a fair and equitable basis on which the strike can be settled.

"I firmly believe that the new contract, which we have offered the union, is a generous one in terms of wages and provides improvements in fringe benefits, which, at Port Ewen, is already among the best in the area."

Statements by John H. Bach, president, stressed that the Local is satisfied with the pay scale and fringe benefits, but is holding out for arbitration of unresolved disputes on questions of job security; specifically discharges, layoffs and rehiring after layoffs.

2 Dead, 100 Hurt In Mexican Quake

MEXICO CITY (AP)—An earthquake believed set off by a rumbling volcano struck south central Mexico Friday, killing two persons, injuring 100 others, causing widespread damage and spreading panic. Mexico is teeming with tourists at this time of the year, but first reports said no foreigners were injured.

'One of Largest Ever'

The quake rocked Mexico City for nine seconds causing one man to die of shock and injured 30 other persons and ranged as far as 190 miles south of the capital.

(The shock which hit at 9:12 a.m. EST was described as "one of the largest earthquakes I have ever recorded" by Dr. J. C. Debremaecker, associate professor of geology at Rice University in Houston, Tex.)

Authorities said two persons perished when a church wing collapsed in Chilapa, about 60 miles from the Pacific Coast resort of Acapulco, one of the hardest hit areas. Thirty-six persons were injured in Acapulco.

The government launched an investigation into reports from around Nuxco, near Acapulco, that a volcano triggered the quake. A potential volcano had been reported earlier in an area about 60 miles east of Acapulco where farmhands said water had boiled up in local streams killing animals.

Scene of '59 Tremor

The earth shocks cracked ceilings and shattered windows in Mexico City's Continental Hilton Hotel, badly damaged by a 1957 quake. Many frightened guests rushed into the street in their pajamas.

The swimming pool atop Mexico City's Hotel Del Passeo spilled water into the dining room, guest chambers, stairways and down elevator shafts.

Ryan, Mitchell and 5 Agree To Lie Tests on TV Version

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—Several persons involved in the dispute over a television show about this city's controversial welfare program have agreed to take lie detector tests.

They are:

Mayor William Ryan, a Democrat; City Manager Joseph Mitchell, author of the welfare program; Dan Bordeau, Catholic Charities director; and Thomas H. Weygant, an unemployed laborer who appeared on the Jan. 28 NBC-TV "White Paper — the Battle of Newburgh."

Republican Councilman George McKneally and Welfare Commissioner Peter Z. Petrillo could not be reached Friday to determine whether or not they would take the test.

The test would be used to determine who gave the true version of what went into the production of the TV program.

Weygant wept on the show as he discussed his dealings with the welfare department.

On Thursday, Mitchell made public a taped recording in which Weygant said NBC paid him $50 and rehearsed his performance.

Weygant, through counsel, said he "confessed" because authorities threatened to take his three children away from him.

The recording also involved the Catholic Charities of Newburgh.

NBC denied any rehearsals or any payment to Weygant, but said the NBC crew gave him $50 in sympathy for his plight.

New York courts have nullified 12 points of Mitchell's 13-point program.

Tough Measures Likely If Soviet Talks Fail

JFK Is Closeted With Policymakers Following Return From World Trips

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy called in his top military and diplomatic policymakers today amid reports he is planning to strengthen U.S. military power in Southeast Asia to meet a spreading crisis in Laos.

It was understood U.S. naval forces may be sent to the area in the next day or so.

Summoned to the White House for the midmorning conference on Laos were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

All Return Friday

All returned Friday night from trips around the world. McNamara spent considerable time in Southeast Asia, where the new outbreak of fighting between Laos government forces and Communist-backed Pathet Lao rebels is proving a source of great concern to the U.S. government.

Kennedy is reported considering strong measures to deal with the situation, assuming that diplomatic efforts to restore a year-long cease-fire in the embattled kingdom prove futile.

In the past the United States has avoided direct military intervention on behalf of the government forces. The question of U.S. military action in the country was recently reopened for review by the President.

Number About 200

The U.S. training and observation mission in Laos is reported to total only about 170 military men and 30 civilians. This is a very small group in comparison with approximately 5,000 Americans engaged in training and supporting government forces in South Viet Nam.

Diplomatic attempts to bring the situation under control hinge mainly on the hope of Soviet cooperation.

Both the United States and Britain have appealed to Moscow to join in halting the fighting by using its influence with Communist and pro-Communist leaders. So far the Soviet government has declined to commit itself, officials said.

Could Endanger Rest

The cease-fire was broken a week ago when pro-Communist forces began moving on the provincial capital of Nam Tha in northwest Laos. They captured that town, a stronghold of pro-Western government forces, and have continued to advance against rapidly retreating government troops. The State Depatment said Friday its information indicated government troops were fleeing into neighboring Thailand.

One major concern of Kennedy administration leaders is that the Red military surge in Laos might upset and endanger the rest of Southeast Asia.

The changing military situation is regarded here as having a direct impact on the political prospects in Laos. The Communists now dominate more than two thirds of the country, according to U.S. official estimates, and pro-government forces less than one third.

Laos Fears Twin Drive, Says Reds Beefing 2 Bases

VIENTIANE, Laos, (AP) — Prince Boun Oum's royal government voiced fear today pro-Communist rebels are closing in for an all-out attack on the twin capitals of Laos that would give them complete control over this landlocked southeast Asia kingdom.

Planes Rush Troops

The Defense Ministry charged Soviet-made Ilyushin transport planes were rushing rebel troops and arms to newly won territory in an apparent buildup for a thrust at Luang Prabang in the heart of Laos and the administrative capital of Vientiane to the south.

The Reds were reported beefing up bases at Muong Sing, 60 miles south of Luang Prabang, and at Van Vieng, 100 miles above Vientiane.

Kin Savang Vathana appealed to Laotian leaders to try to solve the issue peacefully.

Leaders Not Named

The king did not name the leaders in his throne speech to the National Assembly at Vientiane. But he clearly directed his remarks at the rebels who have surged more than 100 miles past the year-old cease-fire line to the border of Thailand.

The United States was openly concerned over the rebel surge. President Kennedy was reported planning to bolster American Military might in Southeast Asia to meet the threat to the central area.

Cooperation Seen In Examples Set By JFK, Blough

HOT SPRINGS, Va., (AP)—President Kennedy and steelman Roger Blough, economic foes a month ago, seem to be deliberately trying to set personal examples of industry-government cooperation.

Kennedy sent an emissary to the weekend session here of the Business Council, an organization headed by Blough and representing the biggest of big business, to unveil the administration's plan for up to $1.25 billion of tax relief through liberalized depreciation rules.

Although many of the more than 100 top-run corporation heads had spoken privately of their doubts and suspicions of the administration's attitude toward business, Blough picked up the White House cue handsomely.

The chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. told newsmen the new treasury order, due in a month or two, is a very important step toward restoring business confidence and clear evidence of the administration's desire to help industry solve the problem of building up funds for investment in new plant equipment.

Blough then sprang a surprise. The Business Council—"at the request of the President," he emphasized—is forming a committee to help and advise the government on reducing the deficit in international payments.

State Fair Awards Amount to $1,700

A total of $1,700 in purchase prizes, in addition to $2,250 in regular awards, will be given in the major art exhibit of painting and sculpture being sponsored by the Women's Division of the 1962 New York State Exposition. This announcement was made by Harold L. Creal, director.

The 1962 Exposition opens Tuesday, August 28, for seven days and nights.

Heading the list of purchase prizes is one in the amount of $1,000 being offered by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute in Utica and Syracust Allied Arts are each offering a $250 purchase prize, Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation of Syracuse will give a $150 purchase prize and Robert Pietrafesa of Fayetteville will give a $50 purchase prize.

Further purchase prizes are still being sought, said Creal.

Prizes being awarded by the Exposition are $1,000 for the work judged best in the show, $750 to second place and $500 to third place.

The show, the largest of its kind ever sponsored by the Exposition, will feature oil, water and mixed media paintings, as well as sculptures by living artists from all over the Empire State.

KHS Choir Excels Friday, to Repeat Program Tonight

Kingston High School Choir, which gave a superb performance Friday night, will repeat its concert tonight at the auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

"Kingston can be justly proud of this fine group," Mrs. Dorothy Narel, Freeman society editor said today. "Their performance can stand side by side with any adult, even professional group. Their sustaining abilities, tone, diction, and interpretation, were excellent," Mrs. Narel said.

"Leonard Stine, their director, is deserving of many laurels for his direction and training," she added.

Highlight of tonight's program will be the performance of Faure's, Requiem Mass.

"No one should miss this concert," Mrs. Narel said.

Viaduct Approach Roads Still Under Design by N.Y.

Plans for a new bridge over the Esopus Creek to be built in conjunction with the razing of the Washington Avenue viaduct, have been completed but those for slightly more than a half mile of approach roads are still being designed, a spokesman for the State Department of Public Works said today.

First estimates, it was noted, indicate that the new bridge to be of similar construction as those on the arterial route spur, will cost some $280,000 and the approach roads about $375,000. Estimated cost for razing of the viaduct was not given. These estimates, it was emphasized are subject to change.

Unless engineers are met with unforeseen problems, it is expected that the public works department will call for bids before the end of this year.

Engineers announced last year that traffic will be maintained directly to and from the uptown business area while the project is under way.

Design of the Esopus Creek bridge was completed in Albany. Plans for the approach roads are being drafted at the state district engineer's office, Poughkeepsie. They are to be forwarded to Albany for approval when completed.

The one approach road will be built from the vicinity of Hurley Avenue to the creek. A section of Route 28 just west of the city will be widened and the alignment changed to a point near the Thruway traffic circle. Approach roads are to be 52 feet wide.

OPEN HOUSE TO START POLICE WEEK —Mayor John J. Schwenk and Police Chief Robert F. Murphy check a copy of the mayor's proclamation designating May 13 through 19 as "Police Week." Police headquarters, city hall, will hold open house Sunday from 2 to 10 p. m. when quarters and facilities of the department may be inspected by the public. Headquarters has a display covering the past and modern times and included is a firearms exhibit owned by Detective Gurnsey Burger. The mayor's proclamation in part, emphasized that "Our first line of defense against the enemies of freedom is our law enforcement agencies." Kingston, he said, has been fortunate "in having one of the finest police departments in the nation," protecting rights, liberties and happiness. It is important, he said, taht the people know the duties, problems and responsibilities of the police, and he urged all to take advantage of the opportunity to honor the police. Troy Methodists Reject Total Liquor Abstinence

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—A resolution demanding that all Methodists abstain totally from liquor has been rejected by the church's Troy Conference, which asked instead that those who abstain not adopt "a holier than thou attitude."

Persons who abstain should have "the ability to stand for what they believe without losing the capacity for compassionate understanding of those who believe differently," the conference said in the resolution it passed.

The conference took the action Friday night at its five-day annual convention.

Total abstinence, however, would be required of men presented for the ministry, Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke said.

Another resolution, urging New York State to raise its minimum legal drinking age from 18 to 21 also was approved by the conference.

In a report Friday, the conference's urban renewal committee said that the membership of the conference had grown by 7,000 persons between 1950 and 1960. The number of churches dwindled from 380 to 344 during the same period, the committee reported.

The conference voted to increase the salaries of its four district superintendents from $8,000 to $8,400. Only token opposition was raised among the 600 persons attending.

The retirement of five ministers was authorized. They are:

Goldberg announced the resignation had been accepted and said:

"It is regrettable that this has happened. Under the circumstances, Mr. Holleman has taken the proper course of action."

Holleman's resignation was the latest development in the swift-moving and sensational case involving Estes. The 37-year-old onetime Pecos farm boy built a huge financial empire on cut-rate sales of liquid fertilizer, government grain storage payments, cotton allotments and mortgages on allegedly nonexistent fertilizer tanks. He has since declared himself bankrupt.

Hercules Talks Go On, Strike Enters 13th Day

Management and unionized employes of Hercules Powder Company were still trying to negotiate a new contract today at Freeman press time as a strike at the plant continued for the 13th day.

The company and Local 13226, District 50, United Mine Workers of America are deadlocked on one issue, compulsory arbitration. Today's negotiations started at 10 a. m.

D. C. Parker, works manager at Port Ewen, said Friday that "in an attempt to bring about a prompt settlement of the strike, we have proposed to arbitrate discharge cases at the request of the union. All other grievances would be handled under the present contract provisions. We feel this is a fair and equitable basis on which the strike can be settled.

"I firmly believe that the new contract, which we have offered the union, is a generous one in terms of wages and provides improvements in fringe benefits, which, at Port Ewen, is already among the best in the area."

Statements by John H. Bach, president, stressed that the Local is satisfied with the pay scale and fringe benefits, but is holding out for arbitration of unresolved disputes on questions of job security; specifically discharges, layoffs and rehiring after layoffs.

2 Dead, 100 Hurt In Mexican Quake

MEXICO CITY (AP)—An earthquake believed set off by a rumbling volcano struck south central Mexico Friday, killing two persons, injuring 100 others, causing widespread damage and spreading panic. Mexico is teeming with tourists at this time of the year, but first reports said no foreigners were injured.

'One of Largest Ever'

The quake rocked Mexico City for nine seconds causing one man to die of shock and injured 30 other persons and ranged as far as 190 miles south of the capital.

(The shock which hit at 9:12 a.m. EST was described as "one of the largest earthquakes I have ever recorded" by Dr. J. C. Debremaecker, associate professor of geology at Rice University in Houston, Tex.)

Authorities said two persons perished when a church wing collapsed in Chilapa, about 60 miles from the Pacific Coast resort of Acapulco, one of the hardest hit areas. Thirty-six persons were injured in Acapulco.

The government launched an investigation into reports from around Nuxco, near Acapulco, that a volcano triggered the quake. A potential volcano had been reported earlier in an area about 60 miles east of Acapulco where farmhands said water had boiled up in local streams killing animals.

Scene of '59 Tremor

The earth shocks cracked ceilings and shattered windows in Mexico City's Continental Hilton Hotel, badly damaged by a 1957 quake. Many frightened guests rushed into the street in their pajamas.

The swimming pool atop Mexico City's Hotel Del Passeo spilled water into the dining room, guest chambers, stairways and down elevator shafts.

Ryan, Mitchell and 5 Agree To Lie Tests on TV Version

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—Several persons involved in the dispute over a television show about this city's controversial welfare program have agreed to take lie detector tests.

They are:

Mayor William Ryan, a Democrat; City Manager Joseph Mitchell, author of the welfare program; Dan Bordeau, Catholic Charities director; and Thomas H. Weygant, an unemployed laborer who appeared on the Jan. 28 NBC-TV "White Paper — the Battle of Newburgh."

Republican Councilman George McKneally and Welfare Commissioner Peter Z. Petrillo could not be reached Friday to determine whether or not they would take the test.

The test would be used to determine who gave the true version of what went into the production of the TV program.

Weygant wept on the show as he discussed his dealings with the welfare department.

On Thursday, Mitchell made public a taped recording in which Weygant said NBC paid him $50 and rehearsed his performance.

Weygant, through counsel, said he "confessed" because' authorities threatened to take his three children away from him.

The recording also involved the Catholic Charities of Newburgh.

NBC denied any rehearsals or any payment to Weygant, but said the NBC crew gave him $50 in sympathy for his plight.

New York courts have nullified 12 points of Mitchell's 13-point program.

State Fair Awards Amount to $1,700

A total of $1,700 in purchase prizes, in addition to $2,250 in regular awards, will be given in the major art exhibit of painting and sculpture being sponsored by the Women's Division of the 1962 New York State Exposition. This announcement was made by Harold L. Creal, director.

The 1962 Exposition opens Tuesday, August 28, for seven days and nights.

Heading the list of purchase prizes is one in the amount of $1,000 being offered by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute in Utica and Syracust Allied Arts are each offering a $250 purchase prize, Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation of Syracuse will give a $150 purchase prize and Robert Pietrafesa of Fayetteville will give a $50 purchase prize.

Further purchase prizes are still being sought, said Creal.

Prizes being awarded by the Exposition are $1,000 for the work judged best in the show, $750 to second place and $500 to third place.

The show, the largest of its kind ever sponsored by the Exposition, will feature oil, water and mixed media paintings, as well as sculptures by living artists from all over the Empire State.

Troy Methodists Reject Total Liquor Abstinence

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—A resolution demanding that all Methodists abstain totally from liquor has been rejected by the church's Troy Conference, which asked instead that those who abstain not adopt "a holier than thou attitude."

Persons who abstain should have "the ability to stand for what they believe without losing the capacity for compassionate understanding of those who believe differently," the conference said in the resolution it passed.

The conference took the action Friday night at its five-day annual convention.

Total abstinence, however, would be required of men presented for the ministry, Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke said.

Another resolution, urging New York State to raise its minimum legal drinking age from 18 to 21 also was approved by the conference.

In a report Friday, the conference's urban renewal committee said that the membership of the conference had grown by 7,000 persons between 1950 and 1960. The number of churches dwindled from 380 to 344 during the same period, the committee reported.

The conference voted to increase the salaries of its four district superintendents from $8,000 to $8,400. Only token opposition was raised among the 600 persons attending.

The retirement of five ministers was authorized. They are:

Tough Measures Likely If Soviet Talks Fail

JFK Is Closeted With Policymakers Following Return From World Trips

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy called in his top military and diplomatic policymakers today amid reports he is planning to strengthen U.S. military power in Southeast Asia to meet a spreading crisis in Laos.

It was understood U.S. naval forces may be sent to the area in the next day or so.

Summoned to the White House for the midmorning conference on Laos were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

All Return Friday

All returned Friday night from trips around the world. McNamara spent considerable time in Southeast Asia, where the new outbreak of fighting between Laos government forces and Communist-backed Pathet Lao rebels is proving a source of great concern to the U.S. government.

Kennedy is reported considering strong measures to deal with the situation, assuming that diplomatic efforts to restore a year-long cease-fire in the embattled kingdom prove futile.

In the past the United States has avoided direct military intervention on behalf of the government forces. The question of U.S. military action in the country was recently reopened for review by the President.

Number About 200

The U.S. training and observation mission in Laos is reported to total only about 170 military men and 30 civilians. This is a very small group in comparison with approximately 5,000 Americans engaged in training and supporting government forces in South Viet Nam.

Diplomatic attempts to bring the situation under control hinge mainly on the hope of Soviet cooperation.

Both the United States and Britain have appealed to Moscow to join in halting the fighting by using its influence with Communist and pro-Communist leaders. So far the Soviet government has declined to commit itself, officials said.

Could Endanger Rest

The cease-fire was broken a week ago when pro-Communist forces began moving on the provincial capital of Nam Tha in northwest Laos. They captured that town, a stronghold of pro-Western government forces, and have continued to advance against rapidly retreating government troops. The State Depatment said Friday its information indicated government troops were fleeing into neighboring Thailand.

One major concern of Kennedy administration leaders is that the Red military surge in Laos might upset and endanger the rest of Southeast Asia.

The changing military situation is regarded here as having a direct impact on the political prospects in Laos. The Communists now dominate more than two thirds of the country, according to U.S. official estimates, and pro-government forces less than one third.

Cooperation Seen In Examples Set By JFK, Blough

HOT SPRINGS, Va., (AP)—President Kennedy and steelman Roger Blough, economic foes a month ago, seem to be deliberately trying to set personal examples of industry-government cooperation.

Kennedy sent an emissary to the weekend session here of the Business Council, an organization headed by Blough and representing the biggest of big business, to unveil the administration's plan for up to $1.25 billion of tax relief through liberalized depreciation rules.

Although many of the more than 100 top-run corporation heads had spoken privately of their doubts and suspicions of the administration's attitude toward business, Blough picked up the White House cue handsomely.

The chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. told newsmen the new treasury order, due in a month or two, is a very important step toward restoring business confidence and clear evidence of the administration's desire to help industry solve the problem of building up funds for investment in new plant equipment.

Blough then sprang a surprise. The Business Council—"at the request of the President," he emphasized—is forming a committee to help and advise the government on reducing the deficit in international payments.

Laos Fears Twin Drive, Says Reds Beefing 2 Bases

VIENTIANE, Laos, (AP) — Prince Boun Oum's royal government voiced fear today pro-Communist rebels are closing in for an all-out attack on the twin capitals of Laos that would give them complete control over this landlocked southeast Asia kingdom.

Planes Rush Troops

The Defense Ministry charged Soviet-made Ilyushin transport planes were rushing rebel troops and arms to newly won territory in an apparent buildup for a thrust at Luang Prabang in the heart of Laos and the administrative capital of Vientiane to the south.

The Reds were reported beefing up bases at Muong Sing, 60 miles south of Luang Prabang, and at Van Vieng, 100 miles above Vientiane.

Kin Savang Vathana appealed to Laotian leaders to try to solve the issue peacefully.

Leaders Not Named

The king did not name the leaders in his throne speech to the National Assembly at Vientiane. But he clearly directed his remarks at the rebels who have surged more than 100 miles past the year-old cease-fire line to the border of Thailand.

The United States was openly concerned over the rebel surge. President Kennedy was reported planning to bolster American Military might in Southeast Asia to meet the threat to the central area.

KHS Choir Excels Friday, to Repeat Program Tonight

Kingston High School Choir, which gave a superb performance Friday night, will repeat its concert tonight at the auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

"Kingston can be justly proud of this fine group," Mrs. Dorothy Narel, Freeman society editor said today. "Their performance can stand side by side with any adult, even professional group. Their sustaining abilities, tone, diction, and interpretation, were excellent," Mrs. Narel said.

"Leonard Stine, their director, is deserving of many laurels for his direction and training," she added.

Highlight of tonight's program will be the performance of Faure's, Requiem Mass.

Business Review Page 16

The gulf between government and business may narrow following the Kennedy administration's offer of the olive branch to business. Jack Lefler, Associated Press business news writer, discusses this in his weekly roundup of the Business Week in Review found on Page 16.

The POWER of FAITH

The Apostles—IV

PAUL

"... we walk by faith, not by sight."

Paul, the great missionary of Christ, lived his faith. This philosophy carried him over parched lands and stormy seas, preaching and teaching. His zeal sustained him during his years of imprisonment by the Romans, during which time he wrote a number of his Epistles. He wrote over half the books in the New Testament, and always the core of his letters was the power and glory of God.

When Paul felt the end of his life was near, he wrote in his second letter to Timothy, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

The POWER of FAITH

The Apostles—IV

PAUL

"... we walk by faith, not by sight."

Paul, the great missionary of Christ, lived his faith. This philosophy carried him over parched lands and stormy seas, preaching and teaching. His zeal sustained him during his years of imprisonment by the Romans, during which time he wrote a number of his Epistles. He wrote over half the books in the New Testament, and always the core of his letters was the power and glory of God.

When Paul felt the end of his life was near, he wrote in his second letter to Timothy, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

ALLIANCE CHURCH

75th Anniversary Of Denomination Being Observed

In 1882, Dr. A. B. Simpson, a Presbyterian minister from New York City, began a Bible College for the training of Christian workers. Five years later the Christian and Missionary Alliance was born, and is this year observing its 75th anniversary.

The school which began so humbly in 1882 is now known around the world familiarly as "Nyack" having been moved to Nyack in 1897. It has more than 11,000 graduates and is the oldest Bible College in America.

Although the Alliance, numbering about 65,000 members, is one of the smaller Protestant denominations, it has affiliated churches throughout the United States, and Canada, coast to coast and north to south.

Mission Program Is Primary

Though the membership is made up largely of those with modest means this society is missionary-minded. Last year the per capita giving for foreign missions alone was $59.07, and this figure is raised each year. Last year 29 churches gave more than $20,000 to foreign missions, above all other expenses of the local churches.

The sum of $4,375,000 was distributed to mission fields in more than a score of currencies, and at the end of the fiscal year the sum of but $657.97 remained.

A remarkable thing about the financing of the great missionary movement is the fact that 86.7 per cent of the total income at headquarters goes to the mission field, and the small percentage of 11 per cent is kept at home for home field ministries, and 2.3 per cent for headquarters operations in New York. World headquarters of the society is at 260 West 44th Street.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance is the sixth largest foreign missionary society in the world, with 844 foreign missionaries, 130,000 baptized church members on the foreign field alone, and 361 ordained national workers in addition to the missionaries.

The Alliance was the first mission society to organize the indigenous church, so that it is financed and staffed by the native converts, serving as an example to other societies.

There are now 2,733 self-supporting churches and groups in the Alliance foreign work.

Local Church Began in '36

The local church was founded in 1936, with the Rev. Lester H. Luck as the pastor. He was followed by the Rev. Walter Williamson, a blind pastor, who was in turn succeeded by the Rev. Charles Kegerize. The Rev. Virgil Brisco, who now serves in Rochester, was pastor here for 12 years immediately prior to the ministry of the in cumbent minister, the Rev. Willard D. Crunkilton.

The Rev. Mr. Luck now is pastoring in Deposit, the Rev. Mr. Williamson is in semi-retirement in Brooklyn, and the Rev. Mr. Kegerize is in Detroit as a pastor.

The present pastor, the Rev. Mr. Crunkilton, came here after five years in Niagara Falls. The minister, with Mrs. Crunkilton and their daughter Alice, lives in the parsonage, 33 Warren Street.

The pastor is currently attending the annual council of the Alliance, Miami, Fla. More than a week ago 2,000 delegates had already registered, and some hundreds more will be attending.

The local church of the Christian and Missionary Alliance is at 131 Franklin Street. The congregation owns a spacious lot on Millers Lane where they plan to build a new edifice.

Presbyterians Plan Special Program Monday

The Couples Club of the First Presbyterian Church will hold its regular meeting one week early Monday, May 14, 8 p. m. after which members will join with the Colonial City Chapter of Presbyterian Men to hear an address by Lt. Lemuel Howard of the local police department.

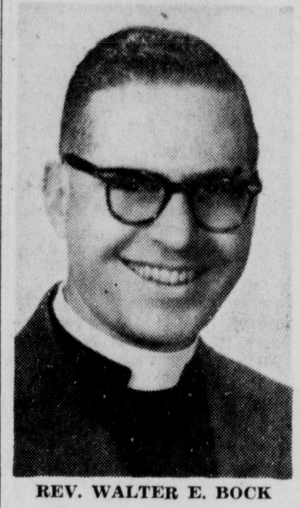

Lt. Howard, whose subject will be Crime Prevention and Detection has appeared before many groups in this area. A popular member of the local department, he has served continuously for 25 years with time out for two years of war service with the Sea Bees.

A sergeant for 12 years, attendance at a number of police schools has enabled him to advance to the rank of Lieutenant a post which he has held for three years.

Many men of the chapter and their wives are planning to be present with the Couples Club for the program.

Refreshments will be served.

Image Versus Reality

Role of Minister's Wife Explored by Researchers

By ARLENE C. Larue
The Syracuse Herald-Journal
Written for The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)--There's a move afoot to remind church congregations that their ministers' wives are human, even though not as fancy-free as sisters outside the parsonage.

A national survey is under way an a theological school plans to publish a manual to guide the wives in their behavior and the congregations in their demands.

Mrs. Hugh F. Miller, a parson's wife, here, is a member of a 12-woman team that seeks to correct the popular conception of the clergyman's wife as a harried, drab woman with a smile etched on her face.

The women are members of the Interdenominational Advisory Committee of a research program on "The Minister's Wife," being conducted by the Boston University of Theology under a grant from the Lilly Foundation, Inc. Their mass-interview project will take three years.

Fact Not Fiction Sought

"What we want to establish is a factual rather than a high-flown ideal," said Mrs. Miller, the wife of the pastor of the Eastwood Baptist Church.

"As things stand, what most people think a minister's wife should be is enough to scare a girl stiff," Mrs. Miller said.

Manuals given wives of seminary students are "just awful," she added.

"They tell you how to set a table properly but say nothing about how to deal with people. Books on the subject present a picture of a minister's wife that doesn't allow us to be human—and we are human."

While the "factual ideal" will help guide seminary students' wives and fiancees, the researchers hope it also will ease the task of parsonage women by remolding the thinking of the country's congregations.

Church Shapes Life

"It's what the church people expect that shapes the life of the pastor's wife," said Mrs. Miller, who has spent nearly 20 years in various congregations. She finds it rewarding to be a minister's wife because "you can share your husband's profession."

"Even though you've married the man, not the profession, you find you are in it together," she said.

But certain restrictions make it difficult for the clergyman's spouse to be herself.

She must think twice before buying a high-fashion gown or trying an exotic hairdo. (Hair coloring is strictly taboo.)

Her children must be models of good behavior; her personal and family plans must be flexible to accommodate the whims of a congregation. The evening she would like to relax may have to be spent at a meeting or in cooking for a parish supper.

In one church, Mrs. Miller recalled, she was expected to substitute regularly for an organist, without pay.

West Is Socially Liberal

"A lot depends upon the community," Mrs. Miller said. "You learn quickly what they want you to be. Generally speaking, I have found that churches on the west coast are more liberal socially and more conservative theologically than those in the east."

Mrs. Miller represents the American Baptists on the research group. The committee has met three times so far — in Boston, Louisville, Ky., and Berkeley, Calif.

The committee members have helped prepare a questionnaire that will go to a sampling of clergymen's wives representing all major denominations.

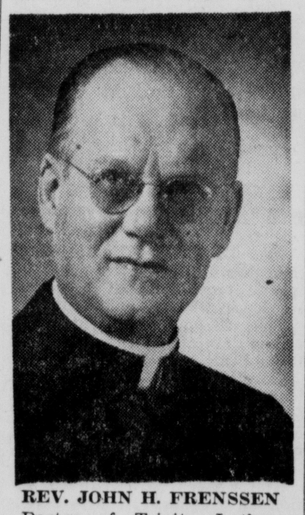

The Rev. William Douglas, D.D., of the Boston University School of Theology is putting the information into a book, to be published in 1963.

The committee has been asked to recommend a title for the book. Early suggestions: "Men, Women and The Clergy," and "Ages and Stages of a Minister's Wife."

Child Health Clinic

A child health conference, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department will be held at Hasbrouck Hall, Modena, Tuesday, May 22 from 1 to 2 p. m. These clinics are limited to infant and pre-school children for the purpose of improving child health through early recognition of defects, advice regarding nutrition, instruction of parents in understanding of growth and development, handling of minor behavior difficulties and the administering of immunizations for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and polio.

Bibical Coins Provide Clue To Ancient Life and Times

One record of life in times of old is the coins of the period. Of all the worldly possessions of persons recorded in history, the money struck in their likenesses or commemorating events or ideals of their world can most easily bring these ancients to life today.

Coins of bronze, silver and gold have lasted well through the almost 3000 years that money has been a medium of exchange. The early coins were moulded, but soon coining, or stamping a piece of metal between metal dies, was invented.

The old terms of weights, such as shekel, were the basis for a whole series of coins. This was first written in the Old Testament.

Genesis 24:22—"And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a golden earring of half a shekel weight and two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold."

The silver shekel was about equal to our five ounce sterling or nine dwt. troy.

Not Tokens of Worth

Early coins of gold and silver were actually weighed to prove their worth. The metal in the coin was their value. They were not tokens of a weight of precious metal held in trust by a government, as our money is.

A silver shekel was a very large amount of money. The average Jewish citizen probably used rebahs or gerahs. One silver shekel equalled 2 bekahs; one bekah equalled 2 rebahs; one rebah equalled 5 gerahs.

In Exodus 38:26—"A bekah for every man, that is a half shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary. . . ." 1 Samuel 9:8—"And the servant answered Saul again, and said, 'Behold I have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver that will I give to the man of God, to tell us our way.'" Also in Exodus 30:13—"This they shall give, everyone that passes among them that are numbered, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary: (A shekel is twenty gerahs) an half shekel shall be the offering of the Lord."

Was Orthodox Ruling

The reference to "shekel of the sanctuary" points out one of the restrictions of the orthodox Jewish religion. They believed absolutely in the second commandment.

Exodus 20:4—"Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above or that is the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth."

Thus temple coins, or coinage for donation to the tabernacle could not have heathen designs, or designs of human faces or figures.

Led to Money Changing

This restriction set up profitable businesses just outside the temple for money-changers, or men who swapped "Temple Money" for the people's Greek, Syrian or Roman heathen money, for a small brokerage fee. As time passed, the money-changers moved from the outside, into the temple, thus;

Matthew 21:12 — "And Jesus went into the temple of God and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers and the seats of them who sold doves."

Shekel and the other coins of the Bible will be on exhibit during the Mid Hudson Numismatic Coin Jamboree Saturday and Sunday, June 16 and 17, at the Stuyvesant Hotel, Kingston.

Morning Meditations

Morning Meditations on Radio Station WGHQ will be conducted by Major Foster Meitrott of the Salvation Army, 94 North Front Street, this week Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday 6:25 a. m. The series is sponsored by the Hudson Valley Evangelical Ministerial Association.

Dr. Bauers is a graduate of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa.; Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia and the Bryn Mawr, Pa., School of Social Work where he received his MSS degree.

Before accepting the call to his present position, which he has held since 1955, he was pastor of an interracial congregation in a Philadelphia slum area. For the past 11 years he has been director of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society of Brooklyn and New York, Inc.

The theme of this meeting is taken from Psalm 133:1 "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethern to dwell together in unity."

Role of Minister's Wife Explored by Researchers

By ARLENE C. Larue
The Syracuse Herald-Journal
Written for The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)--There's a move afoot to remind church congregations that their ministers' wives are human, even though not as fancy-free as sisters outside the parsonage.

A national survey is under way an a theological school plans to publish a manual to guide the wives in their behavior and the congregations in their demands.

Mrs. Hugh F. Miller, a parson's wife, here, is a member of a 12-woman team that seeks to correct the popular conception of the clergyman's wife as a harried, drab woman with a smile etched on her face.

The women are members of the Interdenominational Advisory Committee of a research program on "The Minister's Wife," being conducted by the Boston University of Theology under a grant from the Lilly Foundation, Inc. Their mass-interview project will take three years.

Fact Not Fiction Sought

"What we want to establish is a factual rather than a high-flown ideal," said Mrs. Miller, the wife of the pastor of the Eastwood Baptist Church.

"As things stand, what most people think a minister's wife should be is enough to scare a girl stiff," Mrs. Miller said.

Manuals given wives of seminary students are "just awful," she added.

"They tell you how to set a table properly but say nothing about how to deal with people. Books on the subject present a picture of a minister's wife that doesn't allow us to be human—and we are human."

While the "factual ideal" will help guide seminary students' wives and fiancees, the researchers hope it also will ease the task of parsonage women by remolding the thinking of the country's congregations.

Church Shapes Life

"It's what the church people expect that shapes the life of the pastor's wife," said Mrs. Miller, who has spent nearly 20 years in various congregations. She finds it rewarding to be a minister's wife because "you can share your husband's profession."

"Even though you've married the man, not the profession, you find you are in it together," she said.

But certain restrictions make it difficult for the clergyman's spouse to be herself.

She must think twice before buying a high-fashion gown or trying an exotic hairdo. (Hair coloring is strictly taboo.)

Her children must be models of good behavior; her personal and family plans must be flexible to accommodate the whims of a congregation. The evening she would like to relax may have to be spent at a meeting or in cooking for a parish supper.

In one church, Mrs. Miller recalled, she was expected to substitute regularly for an organist, without pay.

West Is Socially Liberal

"A lot depends upon the community," Mrs. Miller said. "You learn quickly what they want you to be. Generally speaking, I have found that churches on the west coast are more liberal socially and more conservative theologically than those in the east."

Mrs. Miller represents the American Baptists on the research group. The committee has met three times so far — in Boston, Louisville, Ky., and Berkeley, Calif.

The committee members have helped prepare a questionnaire that will go to a sampling of clergymen's wives representing all major denominations.

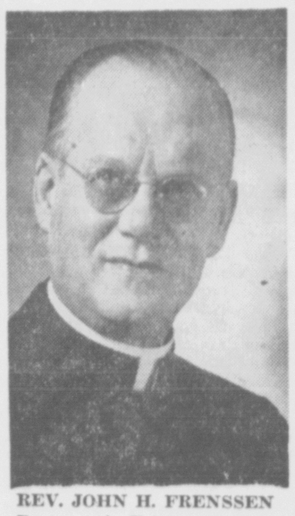

The Rev. William Douglas, D.D., of the Boston University School of Theology is putting the information into a book, to be published in 1963.

The committee has been asked to recommend a title for the book. Early suggestions: "Men, Women and The Clergy," and "Ages and Stages of a Minister's Wife."

Bibical Coins Provide Clue To Ancient Life and Times

One record of life in times of old is the coins of the period. Of all the worldly possessions of persons recorded in history, the money struck in their likenesses or commemorating events or ideals of their world can most easily bring these ancients to life today.

Coins of bronze, silver and gold have lasted well through the almost 3000 years that money has been a medium of exchange. The early coins were moulded, but soon coining, or stamping a piece of metal between metal dies, was invented.

The old terms of weights, such as shekel, were the basis for a whole series of coins. This was first written in the Old Testament.

Genesis 24:22—"And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a golden earring of half a shekel weight and two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold."

The silver shekel was about equal to our five ounce sterling or nine dwt. troy.

Not Tokens of Worth

Early coins of gold and silver were actually weighed to prove their worth. The metal in the coin was their value. They were not tokens of a weight of precious metal held in trust by a government, as our money is.

A silver shekel was a very large amount of money. The average Jewish citizen probably used rebahs or gerahs. One silver shekel equalled 2 bekahs; one bekah equalled 2 rebahs; one rebah equalled 5 gerahs.

In Exodus 38:26—"A bekah for every man, that is a half shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary. . . ." 1 Samuel 9:8—"And the servant answered Saul again, and said, 'Behold I have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver that will I give to the man of God, to tell us our way.'" Also in Exodus 30:13—"This they shall give, everyone that passes among them that are numbered, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary: (A shekel is twenty gerahs) an half shekel shall be the offering of the Lord."

Was Orthodox Ruling

The reference to "shekel of the sanctuary" points out one of the restrictions of the orthodox Jewish religion. They believed absolutely in the second commandment.

Exodus 20:4—"Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above or that is the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth."

Thus temple coins, or coinage for donation to the tabernacle could not have heathen designs, or designs of human faces or figures.

Led to Money Changing

This restriction set up profitable businesses just outside the temple for money-changers, or men who swapped "Temple Money" for the people's Greek, Syrian or Roman heathen money, for a small brokerage fee. As time passed, the money-changers moved from the outside, into the temple, thus;

Matthew 21:12 — "And Jesus went into the temple of God and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers and the seats of them who sold doves."

Shekel and the other coins of the Bible will be on exhibit during the Mid Hudson Numismatic Coin Jamboree Saturday and Sunday, June 16 and 17, at the Stuyvesant Hotel, Kingston.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 12, 1962

WHITHER THE CITY?

The competing elements of the American system of government — the federal, the state and the local, are perhaps in a critical phase of their relationship these days.

A good many men not spurred on by mere party political slogans are actively concerned about the evident continued expansion of federal power.

Acutely symbolic of their worry is the actual or proposed enlargement of federal effort in the affairs of U.S. cities. Washington's interest in urban renewal, mass transit and similar matters is seen as threatening the last province of local control.

Norman Mason, a former federal housing administrator now in the private housing field, believes the cities have all the ingredients they need — leadership, wealth, government structure — to handle these problems themselves.

Not everyone who wants to curb Washington's role in local affairs goes quite that far. Wade Smith, a municipal research specialist, sides with the many who long have declared that the cities' worst handicap is their fragmentation into dozens—sometimes hundreds— of competing and overlapping government units.

This is an old story. Feeling helpless in their fragmented condition, cities have turned first to the states and then to Washington to supply "overall" solutions.

Mason contends that in their "renewal" advance in a U.S. Chamber of Commerce panel review of the problem, think a grave by-product of the trend is the dehumanizing of cities.

"We have forgotten about doing cities over for people," says Mason. "We are doing them over for planners."

Mason contends that in their "renewal efforts planners "push small businessmen, ethnic groups and others" around.

Americans can perhaps readily accept such recitals of the bad effects of long-distance management of local affairs. It is not enough, however, to argue simply that local government can meet its community needs well.

If federal intrusion is to be checked, obviously the cities—and the states—have to prove the case by deeds, not words.

Cities' good intent in this effort may be accepted when they get up the money they need, co-operate with their neighbors where broad plans are required, modernize their activities and keep their mayors from running to Washington with a hat in hand.

UNMATCHED

In the department of hot statistics, put down the fact that 12.5 billion matchbooks are burned up in the U.S.A. every year. That's 143 books for each adult.

The inevitable comparison: In Russia, second largest producer, the figure is one book for every two adults. And they're not given away as they usually are here.

Interestingly enough, in this country criticized for its conspicuous waste, almost nobody throws away a matchbook while there's still a match in it.

MILLION DOLLARS ON DISPLAY

Did you ever see a million dollars?

You will, if you go to this year's Seattle World's Fair. A million silver dollars—weighing 30 tons—will be on display.

It's a sure bet that most viewers will be thinking, "Boy, if I only had that pile of dough!" Who wouldn't? But the sad truth is that if you earned a million in the course of a year, and if you head the average American family of four people, you'd have to pay out $856,910 in federal income taxes —plus whatever state and local taxes you are liable for.

Moreover, that million dollars, big as it looks to the vast majority of us, is a tiny drop in a huge bucket when it comes to government spending. It would, for instance, meet the interest costs on the national debt for just one hour and three minutes—or pay the salaries of federal civilian employes for a mere hour and 27 minutes.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

WHAT IS NECESSITY?

This is a paragraph of a letter from a New York lawyer:

". . . I believe that Kennedy has deliberately surrounded himself with Socialists, that he aims to tamper with our economic life to the detriment of the people who are losing control of their own existence, and I think that you and others, whose writings influence the public opinion and frighten candidates, should protest against the trend . . . We older ones owe this obligation to our children and grandchildren who will be the innocent victims of Socialism after we are gone."

Why is he so frightened? He believes that we are on the verge of socialism. I have heard that outcry since I was a small child. It was heard here in New York when William Randolph Hearst ran for Mayor in 1909. It was then claimed that Hearst was a socialist who would destroy business when, as a matter of fact, he was a capitalist who was building a big business. It was said of Theodore Roosevelt when he interfered in labor-management matters, particularly in the coal strikes. It was said of Gifford Pinchot when he fought for conservation of our natural resources. It was said of Upton Sinclair when he fought against the pollution of our food. It is always said about anyone who uncovers a scandal or offers a reform.

But socialism is clearly definable: it is government ownership of the means of production and distribution and exchange. There are many kinds of socialists. For instance, George Bernard Shaw was a socialist because he believed that poverty is a sin. Beatrice and Sidney Webb, who were the heart and soul of British Fabian Socialism, would, in this country, have been called reformers and their proposals were not as radical as those of the elder La Follette. In this country, neither Eugene V. Debs nor Norman Thomas were socialists of the Bolshevik stripe and among Communists they would be regarded as Utopians, as dreamers for a better world without the willingness to be revolutionary to achieve it.

No President of the United States has been a socialist. Andrew Jackson was, at worst, a precursor of the Populists. Theodore Roosevelt, in retrospect, must be regarded as one who rescued American capitalism from its own excesses. The Marxists say that capitalism contains the seeds for its own destruction. We have been fortunate in this country that whenever those seeds grew into gall-stones, some way appeared to do some major surgery without killing the patient.

The Sherman Anti-Trust Law is an example of precisely such an operation and it is often forgotten that it was the conservative William Howard Taft who did most to enforce this law. These days one hears much in complaint of the Supreme Court, but were it not for the early decisions of Chief Justice John Marshall, it is very doubtful if this nation could have survived at all, because he defined the relations between the powerful States and the weak Federal Government.

If President Washington had his Alexander Hamilton, other Presidents sought advice from those whom they trusted. There is considerable criticism these days of President Kennedy's advisors and associates. That was true in the time of President Hoover and President Franklin D. Roosevelt. When Roosevelt organized his brain-trust he was accused of surrounding himself with socialists. Well, no one would call Raymond Moley a socialist today. Myself, I would call him a scholarly conservative. Adolf Berle is a liberal who has been effective in the fight against Communism. Felix Frankfurter, who was regarded as the worst of all, has, for years, led the conservatives among Supreme Court Justices. I recently heard Henry Wallace deliver an address which no one could possibly call socialistic.

Men may differ on how to save the world but labels do not guide us to the truth. Also, anyone who, even for a short period, has the responsibility of high office, soon enough discovers the difference between campaign talk and practical operations. The difference between the outs and the ins is that the outs may say what they please because they never need do anything about what they say; when a man is actually in office, what he says becomes an act.

For instance, had Nixon been elected instead of Kennedy, he could not have reduced the cost of experimenting with missiles and rockets and space-ships which take such a bite out of our budget.

The Mature Parent

Don't Be Speared on Fork Of Generosity, Resentment

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Although my son knows I have a heart condition, he has given me a terrible shock. He has just bought his wife a car of her own. He pays me no rent for the upper floor of my two-family house where I keep the lower floor as my home. Six years ago when he was having business troubles I offered the floor to him and has family rent free and have never since mentioned the sacrifice this has meant to me. Now I find that he can afford to buy his wife a car to drive herself around town all day and. . . .

ANSWER: You want your son to pay you rent, don't you?

I know a "Yes" to that question is hard for you. But it is a "Yes," isn't it? You want your son to pay you rent—BUT YOU DON'T WANT TO ASK HIM FOR IT. You want him to understand your wish himself and, by giving you rent voluntarily, spare you the embarrassment of asking for it. Isn't that so?

I think it is. And it's pretty romantic of you. However, lots of us do expect this kind of clairvoyant attention from children. In return for all we have done for a son, we feel that we are entitled, not only to his affection but also to HIS GRATEFUL AWARENESS OF WISHES THAT WE HAVE NOT EXPRESSED—and to his indulgence of them. When he doesn't come through with this awareness, we can go wild with rage. We feel helpless and cruelly abused. And the truth is ,we are helpless. On the one hand we have a child who is not going to offer us rent voluntarily and on the other we have a secret pride in our generous, undemanding kindness that forbids us to ask him for it.

In such a situation we can stew indefinitely in bitterness.

Unless we are brave enough to get down from our high horse and know ourselves to be less generous, less kind that we have felt obliged to appear. Unless we can say to ourselves, "O.K., maybe I don't care about looking so wonderfully helpful any more. The fact is, I want some money from my son. I WANT HIM TO PAY ME WHAT HE OWES ME."

It would be fine if you could stop dodging away from this embarrassing wish. Do you know why? Not because I want to hurt or humiliate you by insisting on its existence, but because if you continue to pretend that it doesn't exist, you can't bring it up into the clear light and take a long, unscared, sensible look at its worth.

You say you have heart trouble. Isn't there a deep advantage to you in your children's nearness to you in this house of yours? Isn't their presence more reassuring to you than would be the presence of strangers who paid you rent?

Are your son and his family the only ones who are profiting by this rent-free arrangement? DOESN'T IT ALSO GIVE YOU A SENSE OF SAFETY that balances the financial loss it involves? Are your children as selfish as you have been believing them to be? They are sharing their lives with you, you know.

I can't answer these questions. I just know that if you won't look at your wish for rent from your children, you can't judge its wisdom or its foolishness.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—"Adjustment assistance" programs intended to provide relief for American business firms and their employes hurt by foreign trade competition have now become the key issue in President Kennedy's trade expansion legislation which will soon come before the House.

THE "BIG THREE" business organizations — Committee for Economic Development, National Association of Manufacturers and U. S. Chamber of Commerce —have now formally expressed their opposition to trade adjustment though they endorse the principle of expanded trade and lower tariffs.

This opposition to adjustment assistance comes as something of a surprise. It was put into the Kennedy program to help United States business and labor hurt by expanded imports in industries that could not be protected through escape clause mechanisms.

Kennedy administration estimates are that about 800 United States business firms and some 90,000 American workers might be affected by lower tariffs over the next five year. A $100 million revolving fund is proposed for loans to injured firms and the cost of the adjustment assistance is estimated at $37 million a year, $10 million of which would go for unemployment benefits and retraining of workers.

But now, along comes business and says it doesn't want these props. On the surface, this looks like a resurgence of the old free enterprise system that scorns government aid.

THE PARADOX OF THIS development is that it might help passage of the President's program. If enough high tariff congressmen are persuaded that business wants the trade expansion program, but without adjustment assistance, it's a shoo-in.

The other side of this case is that if adjustment assistance for displaced workers is cut out of the trade expansion program, it may bring down opposition from labor and free trade organizations that hve been its big boosters.

CED, made up of 200 leading corporation executives and college presidents, has just issued a new research and policy committee statement which endorses "A New Trade Policy for the United States—in general, the Kennedy program—as something urgently needed. Emilio G. Collado of Standard Oil, N. J., was chairman of the drafters.

Only one CEDer, John D. Biggers of Libby-Owens-Ford, disapproved the statement in toto. Only one member, Charles W. Englehard, a New Jersey rare metals chemical processor and friend of the President, supported adjustment assistance.

CED OPPOSITION to adjustment assistance is based on opposition to government subsidy, difficulty in determining the cause or extent of damage from foreign competition and a belief that competition from foreign trade is just another hazard in doing business that business itself must overcome.

Also, that existing area redevelopment programs are adequate for the job of providing any assistance needed.

NAM's policy on trade legislation is contained in a little-publicized statement to the House Ways and Means Committee. It supports the principle of expanded foreign trade but questions giving the President powers to cut tariffs on major imports by as much as 50 per without congressional Tariff Commission or other restraints.

On adjustment assistance, however, NAM is opposed. It opposes giving greater unemployment and retaining benefits than are granted by the states. And it opposes government assistance to distressed industries where the cause of the distress by foreign competition may be hard to determine.

A MAJOR, TWO-HOUR HASSLE on foreign trade policy developed at United States Chamber's annual meeting in Washington. It exposed a lot of opposition to the Kennedy program in local chambers. But what finally emerged was reapproval of a two-year-old policy statement in favor of reduced trade barriers.

The Chamber expressed some reservations on adjustment assistance. Any steps taken to expand the escape clause, the Chamber says now, "should not take the form of cash subsidies, should be subject to qualified terminal dates, and the eligibility criteria should be carefully defined.

"Any aid to displaced workers should be administered by the states through their state unemployment compensation systems, with the benefit amounts and the durations being provided in the state systems."

These three positions now define the BIG issue before Congress.

When you have only one way to take a finesse, you have to hope for the best. When you have two ways to go, it is up to you to choose the way that won't hurt you if you go wrong.

South won East's jack of spades with the king and studied the hand. He had to do something about the queen of clubs and he saw that as long as he kept East out of the lead he could lose the finesse and still make his contract.

Therefore, South led a club to dummy's ace, returned the jack and let it ride.

West made his queen of clubs but South got his trick back.

West, like South, wasn't looking at all the cards. He couldn't see that guarded queen of spades in the South hand but he could see that he wasn't likely to be able to beat the hand unless he could take four quick spade tricks so West laid down the ace of spades and hoped for the best.

The best happened, but it was the best for South. He wound up with the same ten tricks he would have taken if he had been successful with the club suit.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 12, 1962

WHITHER THE CITY?

The competing elements of the American system of government — the federal, the state and the local, are perhaps in a critical phase of their relationship these days.

A good many men not spurred on by mere party political slogans are actively concerned about the evident continued expansion of federal power.

Acutely symbolic of their worry is the actual or proposed enlargement of federal effort in the affairs of U.S. cities. Washington's interest in urban renewal, mass transit and similar matters is seen as threatening the last province of local control.

Norman Mason, a former federal housing administrator now in the private housing field, believes the cities have all the ingredients they need — leadership, wealth, government structure — to handle these problems themselves.

Not everyone who wants to curb Washington's role in local affairs goes quite that far. Wade Smith, a municipal research specialist, sides with the many who long have declared that the cities' worst handicap is their fragmentation into dozens—sometimes hundreds— of competing and overlapping government units.

This is an old story. Feeling helpless in their fragmented condition, cities have turned first to the states and then to Washington to supply "overall" solutions.

Mason contends that in their "renewal" advance in a U.S. Chamber of Commerce panel review of the problem, think a grave by-product of the trend is the dehumanizing of cities.

"We have forgotten about doing cities over for people," says Mason. "We are doing them over for planners."

Mason contends that in their "renewal efforts planners "push small businessmen, ethnic groups and others" around.

Americans can perhaps readily accept such recitals of the bad effects of long-distance management of local affairs. It is not enough, however, to argue simply that local government can meet its community needs well.

If federal intrusion is to be checked, obviously the cities—and the states—have to prove the case by deeds, not words.

Cities' good intent in this effort may be accepted when they get up the money they need, co-operate with their neighbors where broad plans are required, modernize their activities and keep their mayors from running to Washington with a hat in hand.

UNMATCHED

In the department of hot statistics, put down the fact that 12.5 billion matchbooks are burned up in the U.S.A. every year. That's 143 books for each adult.

The inevitable comparison: In Russia, second largest producer, the figure is one book for every two adults. And they're not given away as they usually are here.

Interestingly enough, in this country criticized for its conspicuous waste, almost nobody throws away a matchbook while there's still a match in it.

MILLION DOLLARS ON DISPLAY

Did you ever see a million dollars?

You will, if you go to this year's Seattle World's Fair. A million silver dollars—weighing 30 tons—will be on display.

It's a sure bet that most viewers will be thinking, "Boy, if I only had that pile of dough!" Who wouldn't? But the sad truth is that if you earned a million in the course of a year, and if you head the average American family of four people, you'd have to pay out $856,910 in federal income taxes —plus whatever state and local taxes you are liable for.

Moreover, that million dollars, big as it looks to the vast majority of us, is a tiny drop in a huge bucket when it comes to government spending. It would, for instance, meet the interest costs on the national debt for just one hour and three minutes—or pay the salaries of federal civilian employes for a mere hour and 27 minutes.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

WHAT IS NECESSITY?

This is a paragraph of a letter from a New York lawyer:

". . . I believe that Kennedy has deliberately surrounded himself with Socialists, that he aims to tamper with our economic life to the detriment of the people who are losing control of their own existence, and I think that you and others, whose writings influence the public opinion and frighten candidates, should protest against the trend . . . We older ones owe this obligation to our children and grandchildren who will be the innocent victims of Socialism after we are gone."

Why is he so frightened? He believes that we are on the verge of socialism. I have heard that outcry since I was a small child. It was heard here in New York when William Randolph Hearst ran for Mayor in 1909. It was then claimed that Hearst was a socialist who would destroy business when, as a matter of fact, he was a capitalist who was building a big business. It was said of Theodore Roosevelt when he interfered in labor-management matters, particularly in the coal strikes. It was said of Gifford Pinchot when he fought for conservation of our natural resources. It was said of Upton Sinclair when he fought against the pollution of our food. It is always said about anyone who uncovers a scandal or offers a reform.

But socialism is clearly definable: it is government ownership of the means of production and distribution and exchange. There are many kinds of socialists. For instance, George Bernard Shaw was a socialist because he believed that poverty is a sin. Beatrice and Sidney Webb, who were the heart and soul of British Fabian Socialism, would, in this country, have been called reformers and their proposals were not as radical as those of the elder La Follette. In this country, neither Eugene V. Debs nor Norman Thomas were socialists of the Bolshevik stripe and among Communists they would be regarded as Utopians, as dreamers for a better world without the willingness to be revolutionary to achieve it.

No President of the United States has been a socialist. Andrew Jackson was, at worst, a precursor of the Populists. Theodore Roosevelt, in retrospect, must be regarded as one who rescued American capitalism from its own excesses. The Marxists say that capitalism contains the seeds for its own destruction. We have been fortunate in this country that whenever those seeds grew into gall-stones, some way appeared to do some major surgery without killing the patient.

The Sherman Anti-Trust Law is an example of precisely such an operation and it is often forgotten that it was the conservative William Howard Taft who did most to enforce this law. These days one hears much in complaint of the Supreme Court, but were it not for the early decisions of Chief Justice John Marshall, it is very doubtful if this nation could have survived at all, because he defined the relations between the powerful States and the weak Federal Government.

If President Washington had his Alexander Hamilton, other Presidents sought advice from those whom they trusted. There is considerable criticism these days of President Kennedy's advisors and associates. That was true in the time of President Hoover and President Franklin D. Roosevelt. When Roosevelt organized his brain-trust he was accused of surrounding himself with socialists. Well, no one would call Raymond Moley a socialist today. Myself, I would call him a scholarly conservative. Adolf Berle is a liberal who has been effective in the fight against Communism. Felix Frankfurter, who was regarded as the worst of all, has, for years, led the conservatives among Supreme Court Justices. I recently heard Henry Wallace deliver an address which no one could possibly call socialistic.

Men may differ on how to save the world but labels do not guide us to the truth. Also, anyone who, even for a short period, has the responsibility of high office, soon enough discovers the difference between campaign talk and practical operations. The difference between the outs and the ins is that the outs may say what they please because they never need do anything about what they say; when a man is actually in office, what he says becomes an act.

For instance, had Nixon been elected instead of Kennedy, he could not have reduced the cost of experimenting with missiles and rockets and space-ships which take such a bite out of our budget.

The Mature Parent

Don't Be Speared on Fork Of Generosity, Resentment

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Although my son knows I have a heart condition, he has given me a terrible shock. He has just bought his wife a car of her own. He pays me no rent for the upper floor of my two-family house where I keep the lower floor as my home. Six years ago when he was having business troubles I offered the floor to him and has family rent free and have never since mentioned the sacrifice this has meant to me. Now I find that he can afford to buy his wife a car to drive herself around town all day and. . . .

ANSWER: You want your son to pay you rent, don't you?

I know a "Yes" to that question is hard for you. But it is a "Yes," isn't it? You want your son to pay you rent—BUT YOU DON'T WANT TO ASK HIM FOR IT. You want him to understand your wish himself and, by giving you rent voluntarily, spare you the embarrassment of asking for it. Isn't that so?

I think it is. And it's pretty romantic of you. However, lots of us do expect this kind of clairvoyant attention from children. In return for all we have done for a son, we feel that we are entitled, not only to his affection but also to HIS GRATEFUL AWARENESS OF WISHES THAT WE HAVE NOT EXPRESSED—and to his indulgence of them. When he doesn't come through with this awareness, we can go wild with rage. We feel helpless and cruelly abused. And the truth is ,we are helpless. On the one hand we have a child who is not going to offer us rent voluntarily and on the other we have a secret pride in our generous, undemanding kindness that forbids us to ask him for it.

In such a situation we can stew indefinitely in bitterness.

Unless we are brave enough to get down from our high horse and know ourselves to be less generous, less kind that we have felt obliged to appear. Unless we can say to ourselves, "O.K., maybe I don't care about looking so wonderfully helpful any more. The fact is, I want some money from my son. I WANT HIM TO PAY ME WHAT HE OWES ME."

It would be fine if you could stop dodging away from this embarrassing wish. Do you know why? Not because I want to hurt or humiliate you by insisting on its existence, but because if you continue to pretend that it doesn't exist, you can't bring it up into the clear light and take a long, unscared, sensible look at its worth.

You say you have heart trouble. Isn't there a deep advantage to you in your children's nearness to you in this house of yours? Isn't their presence more reassuring to you than would be the presence of strangers who paid you rent?

Are your son and his family the only ones who are profiting by this rent-free arrangement? DOESN'T IT ALSO GIVE YOU A SENSE OF SAFETY that balances the financial loss it involves? Are your children as selfish as you have been believing them to be? They are sharing their lives with you, you know.

I can't answer these questions. I just know that if you won't look at your wish for rent from your children, you can't judge its wisdom or its foolishness.

Washington News

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—"Adjustment assistance" programs intended to provide relief for American business firms and their employes hurt by foreign trade competition have now become the key issue in President Kennedy's trade expansion legislation which will soon come before the House.

THE "BIG THREE" business organizations — Committee for Economic Development, National Association of Manufacturers and U. S. Chamber of Commerce —have now formally expressed their opposition to trade adjustment though they endorse the principle of expanded trade and lower tariffs.

This opposition to adjustment assistance comes as something of a surprise. It was put into the Kennedy program to help United States business and labor hurt by expanded imports in industries that could not be protected through escape clause mechanisms.

Kennedy administration estimates are that about 800 United States business firms and some 90,000 American workers might be affected by lower tariffs over the next five year. A $100 million revolving fund is proposed for loans to injured firms and the cost of the adjustment assistance is estimated at $37 million a year, $10 million of which would go for unemployment benefits and retraining of workers.

But now, along comes business and says it doesn't want these props. On the surface, this looks like a resurgence of the old free enterprise system that scorns government aid.

THE PARADOX OF THIS development is that it might help passage of the President's program. If enough high tariff congressmen are persuaded that business wants the trade expansion program, but without adjustment assistance, it's a shoo-in.

The other side of this case is that if adjustment assistance for displaced workers is cut out of the trade expansion program, it may bring down opposition from labor and free trade organizations that hve been its big boosters.

CED, made up of 200 leading corporation executives and college presidents, has just issued a new research and policy committee statement which endorses "A New Trade Policy for the United States—in general, the Kennedy program—as something urgently needed. Emilio G. Collado of Standard Oil, N. J., was chairman of the drafters.

Only one CEDer, John D. Biggers of Libby-Owens-Ford, disapproved the statement in toto. Only one member, Charles W. Englehard, a New Jersey rare metals chemical processor and friend of the President, supported adjustment assistance.

CED OPPOSITION to adjustment assistance is based on opposition to government subsidy, difficulty in determining the cause or extent of damage from foreign competition and a belief that competition from foreign trade is just another hazard in doing business that business itself must overcome.

Also, that existing area redevelopment programs are adequate for the job of providing any assistance needed.

NAM's policy on trade legislation is contained in a little-publicized statement to the House Ways and Means Committee. It supports the principle of expanded foreign trade but questions giving the President powers to cut tariffs on major imports by as much as 50 per without congressional Tariff Commission or other restraints.

On adjustment assistance, however, NAM is opposed. It opposes giving greater unemployment and retaining benefits than are granted by the states. And it opposes government assistance to distressed industries where the cause of the distress by foreign competition may be hard to determine.

A MAJOR, TWO-HOUR HASSLE on foreign trade policy developed at United States Chamber's annual meeting in Washington. It exposed a lot of opposition to the Kennedy program in local chambers. But what finally emerged was reapproval of a two-year-old policy statement in favor of reduced trade barriers.

The Chamber expressed some reservations on adjustment assistance. Any steps taken to expand the escape clause, the Chamber says now, "should not take the form of cash subsidies, should be subject to qualified terminal dates, and the eligibility criteria should be carefully defined.

"Any aid to displaced workers should be administered by the states through their state unemployment compensation systems, with the benefit amounts and the durations being provided in the state systems."

These three positions now define the BIG issue before Congress.

up evidence that Democrat Estes made big profits from the government surplus grain and cotton programs. Some reports estimate that he received as much as $8 million in payments for storing surplus grain and used the money to build his overextended financial castle.

Republicans, seeing a possible chance to embarrass the administration, have accused the Democratically - controlled congressional committees of dragging their feet. The Republicans contend Estes got favored treatment from the Agriculture Department and demand hearings begin quickly.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has denied that Estes got favored treatment from the Agriculture Department, saying that the government investigation helped to expose Estes' operations.

However, Freeman acknowledged that the department was slow in investigating complaints about Estes' dealings—which the agriculture Department now says were illegal—in cotton allotments. The agency has slapped marketing penalties of more than $500,000 against Estes for his cotton activities.

Other Developments

There were these other developments Friday in the case.

—An Agriculture Department aide, Carl Miller, who approved a $700,000 bond posted by Estes for storing government-owned surplus grain in his elevators, is being transferred to another job, a department spokesman disclosed.

—Senate investigators were reported to have turned up some former Estes employes willing to talk about the Texan's complicated business ventures.

In Texas, State Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said he was satisfied with a suicide verdict in the death last year of Henry H. Marshall, a U.S. Agriculture Department employe. There had been some conjecture Marshall's death was connected with the Estes case.

Holleman, a native of Arlie, Tex., and a former official of the AFL-CIO in Texas, is the only high Kennedy Administration official to have been sideswiped so far by the Estes case.

Others Under Probe

However, as a result of testimony before a Texas inquiry that Estes gave gifts of clothing to several Agriculture Department officials, one official resigned, another was fired and others are under investigation.

Holleman was appointed to the Labor Department last year after the Kennedy administration took office.

Holleman's name first flashed publicly into the Estes case earlier this week in reports that he had asked Estes to kick in money for a testimonial dinner Goldberg gave last January for Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Three days ago Holleman disclosed in a statement he had discussed the dinner with several Texas friends, including Estes, without consulting Goldberg. He said he thought the Texans might like to contribute toward the costs of the party but dropped the mater because it was against Goldberg's policy.

In Friday's statement Holleman said Goldberg told him that "as a matter of firm principle he insisted on paying personally the costs of this and all such personal affairs."

The statement traced the relationship between Estes and Holleman to 1952 when Holleman was assistant to the executive secretary of the Texas Federation of Labor and Estes was engaged in a large scale farming operation in Pecos.

The contacts between Estes and Holleman were frequent during the 1960 campaign, in which Holleman was an assistant Democratic campaign director for Texas.

Disillusioned Red Sympathizer Back in U. S.

Took Only 10 Minutes to Learn 'Soviet Union Evil, Bad Thing'

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — A onetime Communist sympathizer disillusionedly started "picking up the pieces" today following an abortive move to the Soviet Union with his wife and twin sons.

David P. Johnson, 32, formerly of Philadelphia, arrived back in the United States Friday with his family. He admitted making an "exceptionally tragic mistake." It took him only a week to realize Soviet Russia wasn't the land of milk and honey he had thought, he said wearily.

A former $112-a-week timekeeper, Johnson said he has hopes of getting back his job with the Pennsylvania Railroad. The railroad said his case will be decided when all the facts are at hand.

Johnson and his pregnant wife, Joanne, 26, sold their home in Philadelphia after he quit his job last month. The family went on a tourist trip with the intention of staying.

But it took only "10 minutes to find out how wrong we were," he said. "The Soviet Union is an evil, bad thing. The average working man there is not making a decent week's pay. He is not eating well. Or if he is he is paying dearly for it. He is poorly housed. Even the hospitals are poor."

One of the reasons for wanting to move, Johnson said, was to obtain bettter medical care for 4-year-old Lindsey, a blue baby.

Johnson said he never has been a member of the Communist Party but he has supported Communist causes for about 10 years.

The Johnsons are staying with Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. John Zapenas. Mrs. Johnson's sister, Frances, wouldn't give her married name.

"She's too ashamed," said Mrs. Zapenas.

2 Are Missing After Freighter Rams Hawaii Tug

HONOLULU (AP)—The Matson freighter Hawaiian Educator ran down the tugboat William Marsh inside Kahilui Harbor on Maui Island Friday, the Coast Guard said today.

The tug sank and two crew members were missing. Three were rescued.

Coast Guard and Matson officials at Honolulu said the tug had just completed turning the Educator around preparatory to sailing.

The Matson spokesman said lines from the tug apparently caught and pulled it in front of the freighter.

The Coast Guard, police and civilian boats were searching the harbor for the missing men, the tugboat captain and a deck hand.

No names have been made available.

This was the second Pacific collision in three days involving a Matson freighter. The Hawaiian Citizen passed over and damaged the nuclear submarine Permit Wednesday off San Francisco Bay.

The 495-foot Educator continued to Honolulu after the collision.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently this space featured an obituary of the television series that will be interred at the close of the season.

The reader response has been ire and perplexity: How dare they take my favorite show off the air? How do they arrive at these decisions?

The truth is that a series is seldom killed capriciously, though sometimes you hear of behind-the-scenes shenanigans. Most shows expire from malnutrition: not enough beef in the ratings. It is figured mathematically—does the show attract enough viewers per dollar it costs?

"The Dick Van Dyke Show" ran up against this mathematical jeopardy—and won. But it was a stiff fight.

The series was in the iffy category for several weeks until it finally won a renewal.

Star Dick Van Dyke says, "I was shocked. I thought we were doing a good job. But apparently it wasn't good enough.

"According to our cost, we should have been attracting an audience of 10 million. We were getting only 8½ million. That's why one of our sponsors dropped off the show.

"The other sponsor wanted to keep the show and the time slot. It all depended on finding a new sponsor who was willing to go along on the hope that the rating would rise. Fortunately, we found one."

How does he hope to corral those errant 1½ million viewers? It won't be easy, since "The Dick Van Dyke Show" will again be facing Perry Como on Wednesday nights.

"I don't think we'll change anything," the actor said.

Van Dyke is delighted about the renewal—"the show has been the most pleasant experience of my career." He'll get no summer rest; he's now filming "Bye, Bye, Birdie," in which he starred on Broadway.

Woman, 2 Teen Daughters Perish In Elmira Fire

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP)—A woman and her two teen-age daughters were killed early today in a fire that swept their home at 655 Davis St.

The dead were Mrs. Jean W. Berry, Charlene, 17, and Diane, 15.

Michael Berry, 14, son of the dead woman, suffered first and second-degree burns. He was reported in fair condition at Arnot-Ogden Hospital.

Miss Wanda Lowe, 43, who lived with the family, escaped without injury.

Police said Miss Lowe told them Michael tried to lead Diane from the second floor of the frame home but Diane ran back to her room with her sister to get clothes. The bodies of Diane and Charlene were found in their bedroom.

Mrs. Berry's body was found on the second floor.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Fire Chief Benjamin Prall said the fire apparently broke out in a front room on the first floor.

Prall said Mrs. Berry and the two girls apparently died of suffocation. Their bodies were not badly burned.

Study Fishways Plan for Pennsy

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Fish Commission indicated Saturday it wants to study the law before it decides who must bear the cost of any fishways that might be built around Susquehanna River dams.

"We will want to examine the law carefully and get the advice of counsel before expressing any opinions," said Albert M. Day, executive director of the commission.

Because the major dam is in Maryland, that state would have to be in on any moves affecting it, commission sources said.

The possibility of construction of fishways to carry migratory species past the three dams was raised this week when two West Coast experts reported fishways were feasible on the basis of an 18-month study they made.

The experts are Milo C. Bell, Mukilteo, Washington, consulting engineer, and Harlan B. Holmes, Portland, Oregon, consulting biologist. With their preliminary report they sent blueprints for a system of fishways for the three dams, located at Conowingo, Md., and Holtwood and Safe Harbor, Pa.

It is generally conceded that a system of fishways would be a costly project, though no cost estimates have been made on the Bell and Holmes drawings.

Eugene E. Speicher

Funeral Service For Artist to Be Held on Monday

Funeral services for Eugene E. Speicher, one of America's best known painters who died Friday at his home in Woodstock, will be held Monday 2 p. m. at the Lasher Funeral Home Inc., Woodstock.

Mr. Speicher was particularly famous for his portraits and next for his paintings of flowers. His work hangs in virtually every important American museum and many abroad. An art connoisseur once wrote the few museums without a Speicher canvas are those unable to afford the purchase and museums possesing but one wish only that they owned others.

On April 5, he celebrated his 79th birthday. He was born in Buffalo of parents with German antecedents. Family circumstances demanded that he make his own way. In grade school and high school he was a top athlete but had little time for practice. He shined shoes and sold newspapers on the streets of Buffalo and when graduated from high school held a manual labor job in a local lumber yard.

Won Art Scholarship

By this time Speicher was already painting. In 1906 he won a scholarship to the Art Students League and came to New York with only $40 in his pocket. At the league he won the Kelly prize for his portrait of a fellow student, Georgia O'Keefe who very soon became a noted portrait painter in her own right. In 1908 he began studying with Robert Henri, then considered a radical in his techniques, but Henri's radicalism went no further than to admonish his students to go to life for their inspiration and subject matter and young Gene Speicher with both financial and artistic profit abidded this dictum for the balance of his life.

In Speicher's prime his portraits commanded prices high in the four figures and even in the five figures. But his success was not come by quickly nor with ease. He worked. In his studio he kept the hours of a laborer and was at his easel from the moment the light of day became proper for painting and remained so until the light began to fail. A number of his early portraits sold for as little as $25.

On the other hand Speicher was choosy about who he painted. Of his potential subjects, he once said, "I either react to them or I don't." And when he did not react he refused the commission regardless of how much payment was offered. If after painting a sitter he found himself dissatisfied with what he had done he refused to permit the canvas to leave his studio and if by a similar token the sitter was dissatisfied there was no obligation to buy.

In 1910 Speicher married the former Elsie Wilson. She predeceased him by three years. There are no immediate survivors.

Soon Achieved Fame

With the aid of a stone mason the Speichers built their own house in Woodstock. The year after the Speichers were married the painters success really began. He had two pictures accepted by the National Academy of Design and very soon won the portrait prize of the Salamagundi Club, two Hallgarten prizes and the silver medal of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. By 1920, he was accepting only six portrait commissions a year.

Speicher painted actors and actresses and famous persons in all walks of life. He also painted many without fame, for the sheer pleasure the work gave him—among others, a Woodstock quarry man, a Woodstock blacksmith, the daughters of his friend and fellow artist in Woodstock, Charles Rosen.

Speicher had a definite philosophy about art. "When I begin painting," he once said," the model is alive and the blank canvas dead but once I have started and have got the idea on canvas becomes imbued with life."

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. Burial will be in the Artists Cemetery Woodstock. The Rev. Harvey I. Todd, former pastor of the Woodstock Reformed Church will officiate at the funeral and committal.

Goldberg Aide

up evidence that Democrat Estes made big profits from the government surplus grain and cotton programs. Some reports estimate that he received as much as $8 million in payments for storing surplus grain and used the money to build his overextended financial castle.

Favored Treatment: GOP

Republicans, seeing a possible chance to embarrass the administration, have accused the Democratically - controlled congressional committees of dragging their feet. The Republicans contend Estes got favored treatment from the Agriculture Department and demand hearings begin quickly.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has denied that Estes got favored treatment from the Agriculture Department, saying that the government investigation helped to expose Estes' operations.

However, Freeman acknowledged that the department was slow in investigating complaints about Estes' dealings—which the agriculture Department now says were illegal—in cotton allotments. The agency has slapped marketing penalties of more than $500,000 against Estes for his cotton activities.

Other Developments

There were these other developments Friday in the case.

—An Agriculture Department aide, Carl Miller, who approved a $700,000 bond posted by Estes for storing government-owned surplus grain in his elevators, is being transferred to another job, a department spokesman disclosed.

—Senate investigators were reported to have turned up some former Estes employes willing to talk about the Texan's complicated business ventures.

In Texas, State Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said he was satisfied with a suicide verdict in the death last year of Henry H. Marshall, a U.S. Agriculture Department employe. There had been some conjecture Marshall's death was connected with the Estes case.

Holleman, a native of Arlie, Tex., and a former official of the AFL-CIO in Texas, is the only high Kennedy Administration official to have been sideswiped so far by the Estes case.

Others Under Probe

However, as a result of testimony before a Texas inquiry that Estes gave gifts of clothing to several Agriculture Department officials, one official resigned, another was fired and others are under investigation.

Holleman was appointed to the Labor Department last year after the Kennedy administration took office.

Holleman's name first flashed publicly into the Estes case earlier this week in reports that he had asked Estes to kick in money for a testimonial dinner Goldberg gave last January for Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Three days ago Holleman disclosed in a statement he had discussed the dinner with several Texas friends, including Estes, without consulting Goldberg. He said he thought the Texans might like to contribute toward the costs of the party but dropped the mater because it was against Goldberg's policy.

In Friday's statement Holleman said Goldberg told him that "as a matter of firm principle he insisted on paying personally the costs of this and all such personal affairs."

The statement traced the relationship between Estes and Holleman to 1952 when Holleman was assistant to the executive secretary of the Texas Federation of Labor and Estes was engaged in a large scale farming operation in Pecos.

The contacts between Estes and Holleman were frequent during the 1960 campaign, in which Holleman was an assistant Democratic campaign director for Texas.

Disillusioned Red Sympathizer Back in U. S.

Took Only 10 Minutes to Learn 'Soviet Union Evil, Bad Thing'

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — A onetime Communist sympathizer disillusionedly started "picking up the pieces" today following an abortive move to the Soviet Union with his wife and twin sons.

David P. Johnson, 32, formerly of Philadelphia, arrived back in the United States Friday with his family. He admitted making an "exceptionally tragic mistake." It took him only a week to realize Soviet Russia wasn't the land of milk and honey he had thought, he said wearily.

A former $112-a-week timekeeper, Johnson said he has hopes of getting back his job with the Pennsylvania Railroad. The railroad said his case will be decided when all the facts are at hand.

Johnson and his pregnant wife, Joanne, 26, sold their home in Philadelphia after he quit his job last month. The family went on a tourist trip with the intention of staying.

But it took only "10 minutes to find out how wrong we were," he said. "The Soviet Union is an evil, bad thing. The average working man there is not making a decent week's pay. He is not eating well. Or if he is he is paying dearly for it. He is poorly housed. Even the hospitals are poor."

One of the reasons for wanting to move, Johnson said, was to obtain bettter medical care for 4-year-old Lindsey, a blue baby.

Johnson said he never has been a member of the Communist Party but he has supported Communist causes for about 10 years.

The Johnsons are staying with Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. John Zapenas. Mrs. Johnson's sister, Frances, wouldn't give her married name.

"She's too ashamed," said Mrs. Zapenas.

The Coast Guard, police and civilian boats were searching the harbor for the missing men, the tugboat captain and a deck hand.

No names have been made available.

Since the electrocution, Joseph has spent 15 years in prison for various crimes.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently this space featured an obituary of the television series that will be interred at the close of the season.

The reader response has been ire and perplexity: How dare they take my favorite show off the air? How do they arrive at these decisions?

The truth is that a series is seldom killed capriciously, though sometimes you hear of behind-the-scenes shenanigans. Most shows expire from malnutrition: not enough beef in the ratings. It is figured mathematically—does the show attract enough viewers per dollar it costs?

"The Dick Van Dyke Show" ran up against this mathematical jeopardy—and won. But it was a stiff fight.

The series was in the iffy category for several weeks until it finally won a renewal.

Star Dick Van Dyke says, "I was shocked. I thought we were doing a good job. But apparently it wasn't good enough.

"According to our cost, we should have been attracting an audience of 10 million. We were getting only 8½ million. That's why one of our sponsors dropped off the show.

"The other sponsor wanted to keep the show and the time slot. It all depended on finding a new sponsor who was willing to go along on the hope that the rating would rise. Fortunately, we found one."

How does he hope to corral those errant 1½ million viewers? It won't be easy, since "The Dick Van Dyke Show" will again be facing Perry Como on Wednesday nights.

"I don't think we'll change anything," the actor said.

Van Dyke is delighted about the renewal—"the show has been the most pleasant experience of my career." He'll get no summer rest; he's now filming "Bye, Bye, Birdie," in which he starred on Broadway.

Woman, 2 Teen Daughters Perish In Elmira Fire

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP)—A woman and her two teen-age daughters were killed early today in a fire that swept their home at 655 Davis St.

The dead were Mrs. Jean W. Berry, Charlene, 17, and Diane, 15.

Michael Berry, 14, son of the dead woman, suffered first and second-degree burns. He was reported in fair condition at Arnot-Ogden Hospital.

Miss Wanda Lowe, 43, who lived with the family, escaped without injury.

Police said Miss Lowe told them Michael tried to lead Diane from the second floor of the frame home but Diane ran back to her room with her sister to get clothes. The bodies of Diane and Charlene were found in their bedroom.

Mrs. Berry's body was found on the second floor.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Fire Chief Benjamin Prall said the fire apparently broke out in a front room on the first floor.

Prall said Mrs. Berry and the two girls apparently died of suffocation. Their bodies were not badly burned.

Study Fishways Plan for Pennsy

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Fish Commission indicated Saturday it wants to study the law before it decides who must bear the cost of any fishways that might be built around Susquehanna River dams.

"We will want to examine the law carefully and get the advice of counsel before expressing any opinions," said Albert M. Day, executive director of the commission.

Because the major dam is in Maryland, that state would have to be in on any moves affecting it, commission sources said.

The possibility of construction of fishways to carry migratory species past the three dams was raised this week when two West Coast experts reported fishways were feasible on the basis of an 18-month study they made.

The experts are Milo C. Bell, Mukilteo, Washington, consulting engineer, and Harlan B. Holmes, Portland, Oregon, consulting biologist. With their preliminary report they sent blueprints for a system of fishways for the three dams, located at Conowingo, Md., and Holtwood and Safe Harbor, Pa.

It is generally conceded that a system of fishways would be a costly project, though no cost estimates have been made on the Bell and Holmes drawings.

Eugene E. Speicher

Funeral Service For Artist to Be Held on Monday

Funeral services for Eugene E. Speicher, one of America's best known painters who died Friday at his home in Woodstock, will be held Monday 2 p. m. at the Lasher Funeral Home Inc., Woodstock.

Mr. Speicher was particularly famous for his portraits and next for his paintings of flowers. His work hangs in virtually every important American museum and many abroad. An art connoisseur once wrote the few museums without a Speicher canvas are those unable to afford the purchase and museums possesing but one wish only that they owned others.

On April 5, he celebrated his 79th birthday. He was born in Buffalo of parents with German antecedents. Family circumstances demanded that he make his own way. In grade school and high school he was a top athlete but had little time for practice. He shined shoes and sold newspapers on the streets of Buffalo and when graduated from high school held a manual labor job in a local lumber yard.

Won Art Scholarship

By this time Speicher was already painting. In 1906 he won a scholarship to the Art Students League and came to New York with only $40 in his pocket. At the league he won the Kelly prize for his portrait of a fellow student, Georgia O'Keefe who very soon became a noted portrait painter in her own right. In 1908 he began studying with Robert Henri, then considered a radical in his techniques, but Henri's radicalism went no further than to admonish his students to go to life for their inspiration and subject matter and young Gene Speicher with both financial and artistic profit abidded this dictum for the balance of his life.

In Speicher's prime his portraits commanded prices high in the four figures and even in the five figures. But his success was not come by quickly nor with ease. He worked. In his studio he kept the hours of a laborer and was at his easel from the moment the light of day became proper for painting and remained so until the light began to fail. A number of his early portraits sold for as little as $25.

On the other hand Speicher was choosy about who he painted. Of his potential subjects, he once said, "I either react to them or I don't." And when he did not react he refused the commission regardless of how much payment was offered. If after painting a sitter he found himself dissatisfied with what he had done he refused to permit the canvas to leave his studio and if by a similar token the sitter was dissatisfied there was no obligation to buy.

In 1910 Speicher married the former Elsie Wilson. She predeceased him by three years. There are no immediate survivors.

Soon Achieved Fame

With the aid of a stone mason the Speichers built their own house in Woodstock. The year after the Speichers were married the painters success really began. He had two pictures accepted by the National Academy of Design and very soon won the portrait prize of the Salamagundi Club, two Hallgarten prizes and the silver medal of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. By 1920, he was accepting only six portrait commissions a year.

Speicher painted actors and actresses and famous persons in all walks of life. He also painted many without fame, for the sheer pleasure the work gave him—among others, a Woodstock quarry man, a Woodstock blacksmith, the daughters of his friend and fellow artist in Woodstock, Charles Rosen.

Speicher had a definite philosophy about art. "When I begin painting," he once said," the model is alive and the blank canvas dead but once I have started and have got the idea on canvas becomes imbued with life."

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. Burial will be in the Artists Cemetery Woodstock. The Rev. Harvey I. Todd, former pastor of the Woodstock Reformed Church will officiate at the funeral and committal.

Chad and Ginger Share Victory

Chad stood on the porch and watched his uncle ride off with the other men. He had begged to be allowed to go along, but his uncle had said, "Not this time. This isn't a trip for kids. We're after that grizzly bear that has been killing our sheep."

Chad reached down and patted his dog's head. "It's no go, Ginger. You and I just aren't big enough. Let's walk over to the ravine."

They took a short cut through the woods and were there in less than an hour. Chad began searching for arrow heads and Ginger searched for ground squirrels. They were both too paralyzed with fear to make a move when they first heard the big bear crashing through the brush.

Chad knew in a moment what had happened. The hounds had trailed the bear and were chasing him this way. The men couldn't be very far behind but they might be too far to be of any help to him.

Ginger stood by his master, his hair bristling. Then as the bear began a snarling advance, the dog circled around and clamped his sharp teeth on the grizzly's right hind foot.

As the bear wheeled, Ginger jumped on its haunches, holding on with teeth and claws.

At first the bear was only annoyed. Then he flung himself around in circles trying to shake off the little dog.

Chad knew that it wouldn't take very long. He was amazed that Ginger had managed to hang on even these few minutes. After that, the bear would come after him, and he wouldn't have a chance of escape unless the men managed to get there first.

He wanted to run, but he couldn't leave Ginger. Not when the dog was trying so gallantly to help him. He looked for some other means of escape and it was then that he saw the bear trap. If there was only some means of making the bear come in that direction!

The only possible chance was to stand behind it so that the grizzly would come after him. If it missed the trap—well, maybe the men would get there in time.

He ran behind the trap and waited breathlessly. Now the bear had shaken Ginger loose. He rushed forward angrily, not watching where he was going, and lunged into the steel jaws of the trap.

It was only moments later that the hounds came running along, followed by the men. Ginger stood by proudly wagging his tail. The battle was over and they were the winners.

Eat Mores

Fix these delicious little snacks for your family or for the girls when they are over at your house for an afternoon of fun. Better fix plenty. These little "eat mores" have a habit of disappearing.

Toast a marshmallow until soft. (You can toast a whole cookie sheet full of marshmallows if you place them in a moderate oven. Take out as soon as they turn a light gold color.)

Pop the hot marshmallow on a graham cracker which you have all ready covered with four squares of a milk chocolate bar. Cover with another graham cracker and eat at once.

Off Grooves

Correct handling means holding a record by its edge, or by one edge and the center. Keep fingers off the grooves.

Last May I Met

By Ida M. Pardue

Players form a circle for this May party game.

One player starts by saying "Last May I Met—" and adding a name which starts with the letter A—Ada, for instance. The next player says "Last May I Met—" adding a name beginning with B, and so on through the alphabet.

A player who repeats a name already given, drops out of the game. So does a player who cannot give a name in 5 seconds. The player who stays in the game the longest, wins.

Ever Hunt Whale With Field Glasses and Camera?

Some whalers now go "hunting" with camera or field glasses to "capture" pictures like this.

That's How It's Done Off California's Coast

"Whale hunting," with field glasses and cameras, has replaced the time honored harpoon along the California coast.

The annual "Parade of Whales" as they migrate from the Bering Sea to Scammon Lagoon and Magdalena Bay, Mexico, a distance of 6,000 miles, passing close to shore, gives thousands of persons the opportunity to have a close-up look at the world's largest mammals.

From late December until mid-March, thousands of grey whales rendezvous off of the Mexican coast, 350 to 600 miles south of San Diego.

Here they give birth to their young, remaining in the southern waters for a period of about six weeks. When the calves have increased in size and gained strength the return trek to their northern feeding grounds begins.

From various ports along the California coast, excursion boats, which are large sportfishing boats, take passengers to sea for a close-up look at the whales. Frequently, these great mammals will be located close to shore or they may be 15 miles or more at sea.

Again, whales may "blow" right under the bow of your boat or surface several hundred yards away.

Unless they become annoyed by the "sightseers" which, could be dangerous, the great mammals hold to a true southerly course never stopping to feed.

The species is known as the California whale or devilfish. The Japanese know them as Koku-Kujira. These creatures grow to a length of forty-five feet and will weigh from 30 to 40 tons.

Grey whales are not an object of beauty. Their color consists of various greys with multiple white spots, marking the places where barnacle have been scraped off of the skin as they maneuver in shallow water. They are a sort of harbor for parasites.

From the time they leave the Bering Sea and until they return, months later, after their calves are born, they do not appear to eat anything at all. During this time they live off their blubber.

They are extremely dangerous if cornered, wounded or molested. The males, who are smaller than the females, are very much attached to their mates and unlike any other whale, they will attack unprovoked, charging boats with their heads, biting and smashing with their tails.

This is one reason that even getting too close to them when on a whale hunt excursion boat can be dangerous if the mammal, as the boatmen say, "becomes spooked" and charges.

Making Good Cents

The foil covers from the tops of milk bottles make good cents. For each piece of play money, just flatten two covers, and then paste them together with the shiny sides out.

Platter Pretties

Soft pink or blue outing flannel cut to the pattern of a record's paper jacket makes a snug, bright coat for your favorite discs.

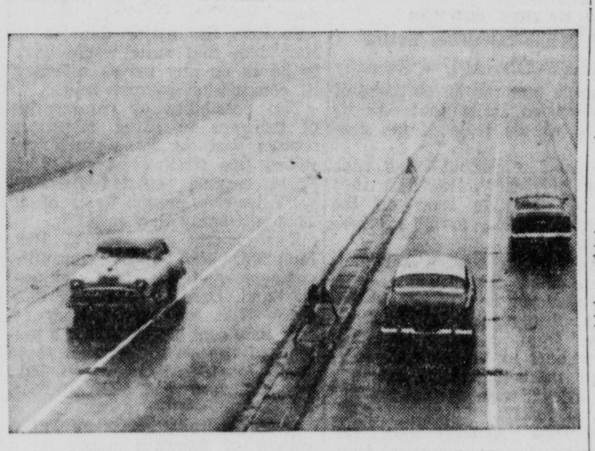

Fold the flannel and cut two pieces exactly the same, using the paper jacket as a pattern. Sew them together with yarn in matching or contrasting color, using big stitches.

With pencil write the first name of the artist singing the song. Go over the pencil markings carefully with crayon.

These platter pretties will look good in your record rack or you can thumb tack your favorites to your bulletin board. A thumb tack through the top center of the flannel coat will hold them securely in place.

Can You See the Difference Between These Two?

The big difference here is that the picture on the left, taken in England, shows automobiles driving on the left-hand side of the road; while the picture on the right, taken in the U.S., shows cars driving on the right-hand side of the road. It would take a sharp eye and keen mind to see the difference, so, if you saw it, consider yourself an eagle eye.

In this country we are so used to having traffic take right-hand side of the road that it seems the natural way to do it.

However, in England the opposite is the correct method and cars take the left side. This difference is not due to some whim or happenstance. There was good reasoning for it in the beginning. Although that reason does not hold today when cars and trucks have taken the place of horse-drawn vehicles, the rule is still followed.

Long ago in England, when carts and wagons were first used, the driver sat on a board across the front of the wagon. He held a whip in his right hand and sat on the right end of the seat because only from this end would the whip clear the wagon.

When two drivers met, each pulled his wagon to the left because the roads were narrow and only in this way could each see that his wagon cleared the other. So a custom began that is still followed by all vehicles in England.

The American colonies followed this rule at first. Then came the huge Conestoga wagons, first used to carry wheat from the Conestoga Valley in Pennsylvania.

They were pulled by three teams of horses, the driver sitting on the left rear horse. He sat on the left horse because from this position he could touch any horse with his whip. Had he sat on the right horse he could not have reached the left horse since he held the whip in his right hand.

When he met another wagon, he turned to his right so that he could see that he cleared the other. Since these large wagons always turned to the right, drivers of small wagons were forced to turn to the right, too.

It became the custom for all wagons to turn to the right even though the drivers of small wagons continued to sit on the right because it was more convenient to handle the whip from that side.

Drivers of early American automobiles sat on the right too, but about 50 years ago the steering wheel was moved over to the left.

Homework

By Frances Gorman Risser

I hated doing home work
When sun shone and breezes blew;
I thought I'd like to be a bird
With nothing much to do.

And then I noticed that the birds
Were busy as could be
At building nests high in the tops
Of almost every tree.

They tugged and pulled each twig in place,
But did they sulk? Oh, no—
They trilled a merry roundelay,
As they flew too and fro.

Yes, they were doing home work, too,
And singing all the while,
So I sat down and did my work
With a contented smile!

Thanks Should Be Handwritten

Q: In acknowledgment of two wedding presents I sent to two brides recently, I received a small photograph of the bride and groom in their wedding clothes with the words, "Thank you so much for your lovely present" printed underneath the picture. I would like to know if these were in good taste. My daughter is going to be married soon and would like to send out similar acknowledgments, but before doing so we would like your opinion on the propriety of these photographs.

A: The picture of the bride and groom is a nice idea but the thank-you message should be handwritten by the bride and should specifically describe the present. Printed thanks for an unnamed gift is never in good taste.

No Time to Change Clothes

Q: My husband is president of a lodge. We will be fortunate enough to have the national grand president and his wife visit here next month. During the afternoon a tour of our city is planned. My husband and I are to be host and hostess on the tour, which will be at three o'clock in the afternoon. Immediately following the tour a small cocktail party is planned in their honor. There will not be time in between to change clothes. I had planned on wearing a suit on the tour but do not know whether these clothes will be proper to wear at the cocktail party. Would a suit be correct or should I choose something else?

A: Your suit will be entirely correct, especially as no one else on the tour will be able to change into a cocktail dress.

Asking for Return of Bouquet

Q: I would like to know if it would be proper to ask the person who catches my bouquet at the wedding reception to return it to me as I would like to have it as a keepsake.

A: No, please don't. If you wish to have a keepsake, you can remove a flower or two from your bouquet before throwing it.

35 Receive Caps During Ceremonies Held At Benedictine; Father Bockstie Speaks

The Rev. Richard Bockstie, CSsR, professor of Moral Theology at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, told the Class of 1964, Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing, that " . . . a nurse's life is heroic but usually not in a striking way. It consists of being exact and efficient in one's technique; in a sense of humor when everything is going wrong; in a friendly gesture, a cheerful word when one is depressed. It is the giving of what you are as well as what you have."

The speech was given during annual capping ceremonies on April 29 at St. Mary's Church, Kingston. Thirty-five students, having completed their first eight months of training, received their caps from Sister Mary Callista and Sister Mary Charles. The Rev. Father Bockstie blessed the caps for them.

Members of the Class of 1964 are: Rosemary Jane Baker, Annette Marie Belsito, Mary Ann Bescherer, Carol Anne Budi, Nancy Jane Byrne, Carol Ann Cahill, Carole May Cypert, Maureen Jane DeLuca, Rita Patricia Desler, Mary Ellen DeVeau, Phyllis Mary DeYorgi, Linda Marie Fields, Sandra Lee Gravlin, Jo Dell Harlow, Patricia May Klementis, Sister Mary Laetitia.

Also Marilyn Joan Long, Sister Mary Loretta, Suzanne Frances Mincieli, Mary Octavia Muller, Maureen Ann Murphy, Mary Ann O'Brien, Sharon Marie O'Brien, Carol Ann Pastore, Lorraine Paula Podlubny, Carol Patricia Richardson, Cecile Merle Roberts, Jo Ann Marie Salvestrini, Sister Mary Shawn, Carol Ann Smith, Gladys Mildred Tomshaw, Jananne Kay Traver, Sister Mary Trinitas, Charletta Jane Underwood and Barbara Ann Von Hagn.

Urges Dedication

Father Backstie urged the students to dedicate themselves to making the sick live. He said:

"Last year on September 10, girls from Tupper Lake, Peekskill, New York, Kingston and other cities entered the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing. Even though each girl came from a different town or city, yet all of them had the same dream—to be a nurse. What brought them to the school of nursing? To a certain degree, it might have been the glamour of nursing. They pictured themselves in a spotless blue uniform with a white apron and a white hat being admired by all. To a certain degree, it might have been the heroic life of a nurse which they often read about or which they saw portrayed in the movies. But most of all they wanted to dedicate themselves to making the sick live.

"As summer faded into autumn and as the leaves began to fall from the trees, the glamorous aspect of nursing faded into obscurity. The early rising, the endless rounds, care of the dying, the answering the light of a patient at a most inconvenient time, the unreasonable visitor, the irritable doctor were not glamorous.

". . . even though the glamour of the nursing career vanished, even though a nurse's life is not ordinarily heroic in a striking way, yet these girls still dreamed of dedicating themselves to helping the sick.

". . . . Since a nurse is called upon to work with the bodies and souls of men, certain qualifications are demanded. For eight months now they have been in training. Long hours have been spent in the classroom and in study. They have been tested in anatomy, science and other subjects. They have worked in the hospital under the close scrutiny of instructors and supervisors. And they have found in you the fundamental qualities necessary for the nursing career. The cap which was placed upon your head today, signifies this fact."

Father Bockstie also called for the nurses to be enthusiastic about their vocation; to have patience, self-devotion, courage and strength of character, but most of all, to have an understanding heart. In conclusion he said:

"We pray this is the spirit of your vocation. If it is, then your cap will crown a head full of wisdom; your hands will be full of healing and your heart will be full of understanding. And you will reproduce the image of the compassionate Christ, the healer of body and soul."

Program Is Given

At the conclusion of the capping ceremony, the student nurses placed candles on the Altar of the Blessed Mother. They also participated in the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Music for the occasion was provided by the Student Nurse Choir with Sister Evelyn at the organ. Selections included "Mother Beloved," "Come Holy Ghost," "Panis Angelicus," "Alleluia, Alleluia," and "Let the Holy Anthem Rise."

A Pledge of Fidelity to Duty was also recited by the nurses.

Class officers are: Sandra Lee Gravlin, president; Mary Ann Bescherer, vice president; Rosemary Jane Baker, secretary; Carol Patricia Richardson, treasurer.

Drained small sardines, arranged on lettuce and garnished with lemon wedges, may be served as a main course for lunch or as a first course for dinner.

35 Receive Caps During Ceremonies Held At Benedictine; Father Bockstie Speaks

The Rev. Richard Bockstie, CSsR, professor of Moral Theology at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, told the Class of 1964, Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing, that " . . . a nurse's life is heroic but usually not in a striking way. It consists of being exact and efficient in one's technique; in a sense of humor when everything is going wrong; in a friendly gesture, a cheerful word when one is depressed. It is the giving of what you are as well as what you have."

The speech was given during annual capping ceremonies on April 29 at St. Mary's Church, Kingston. Thirty-five students, having completed their first eight months of training, received their caps from Sister Mary Callista and Sister Mary Charles. The Rev. Father Bockstie blessed the caps for them.

Members of the Class of 1964 are: Rosemary Jane Baker, Annette Marie Belsito, Mary Ann Bescherer, Carol Anne Budi, Nancy Jane Byrne, Carol Ann Cahill, Carole May Cypert, Maureen Jane DeLuca, Rita Patricia Desler, Mary Ellen DeVeau, Phyllis Mary DeYorgi, Linda Marie Fields, Sandra Lee Gravlin, Jo Dell Harlow, Patricia May Klementis, Sister Mary Laetitia.

Also Marilyn Joan Long, Sister Mary Loretta, Suzanne Frances Mincieli, Mary Octavia Muller, Maureen Ann Murphy, Mary Ann O'Brien, Sharon Marie O'Brien, Carol Ann Pastore, Lorraine Paula Podlubny, Carol Patricia Richardson, Cecile Merle Roberts, Jo Ann Marie Salvestrini, Sister Mary Shawn, Carol Ann Smith, Gladys Mildred Tomshaw, Jananne Kay Traver, Sister Mary Trinitas, Charletta Jane Underwood and Barbara Ann Von Hagn.

Urges Dedication

Father Backstie urged the students to dedicate themselves to making the sick live. He said:

"Last year on September 10, girls from Tupper Lake, Peekskill, New York, Kingston and other cities entered the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing. Even though each girl came from a different town or city, yet all of them had the same dream—to be a nurse. What brought them to the school of nursing? To a certain degree, it might have been the glamour of nursing. They pictured themselves in a spotless blue uniform with a white apron and a white hat being admired by all. To a certain degree, it might have been the heroic life of a nurse which they often read about or which they saw portrayed in the movies. But most of all they wanted to dedicate themselves to making the sick live.

"As summer faded into autumn and as the leaves began to fall from the trees, the glamorous aspect of nursing faded into obscurity. The early rising, the endless rounds, care of the dying, the answering the light of a patient at a most inconvenient time, the unreasonable visitor, the irritable doctor were not glamorous.

". . . even though the glamour of the nursing career vanished, even though a nurse's life is not ordinarily heroic in a striking way, yet these girls still dreamed of dedicating themselves to helping the sick.

". . . Since a nurse is called upon to work with the bodies and souls of men, certain qualifications are demanded. For eight months now they have been in training. Long hours have been spent in the classroom and in study. They have been tested in anatomy, science and other subjects. They have worked in the hospital under the close scrutiny of instructors and supervisors. And they have found in you the fundamental qualities necessary for the nursing career. The cap which was placed upon your head today, signifies this fact."

Father Bockstie also called for the nurses to be enthusiastic about their vocation; to have patience, self-devotion, courage and strength of character, but most of all, to have an understanding heart. In conclusion he said:

"We pray this is the spirit of your vocation. If it is, then your cap will crown a head full of wisdom; your hands will be full of healing and your heart will be full of understanding. And you will reproduce the image of the compassionate Christ, the healer of body and soul."

Program Is Given

At the conclusion of the capping ceremony, the student nurses placed candles on the Altar of the Blessed Mother. They also participated in the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Music for the occasion was provided by the Student Nurse Choir with Sister Evelyn at the organ. Selections included "Mother Beloved," "Come Holy Ghost," "Panis Angelicus," "Alleluia, Alleluia," and "Let the Holy Anthem Rise."

A Pledge of Fidelity to Duty was also recited by the nurses.

Class officers are: Sandra Lee Gravlin, president; Mary Ann Bescherer, vice president; Rosemary Jane Baker, secretary; Carol Patricia Richardson, treasurer.

Drained small sardines, arranged on lettuce and garnished with lemon wedges, may be served as a main course for lunch or as a first course for dinner.

One of the major issues facing the conference is the proposal to merge with the New York East Conference, thus forming a large administrative unit of 609 churches bearing the name of the New York Conference. The present dividing line is Third Avenue in New York City, the line extending northeast through Westchester County.

The conference will open May 23 at 10:30 a. m. with the Sacrament of Holy Communion administered by Bishop Wicke, the four district superintendents and the host pastor, the Rev. Dr. D. George Davies. Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent of the Ulster County Extension Service Association, submits the following article on "A good family game."

A good family game for mealtime could be "Guess Where This Food May Have Come From."

Bananas from Ecuador, tomatoes out-of-season from Mexico, olive oil from Spain, and cocoa beans from Ghana and Nigeria. When your family sits down to their evening meal there's a good chance that at least some of the food came halfway around the world to your dinner table.

Over a fourth of all the imports to this country are agricultural products. Coffee held the biggest share of last year's agricultural imports — 28 per cent. Most of our coffee comes from Brazil and Columbia. We also bought tons and tons of sugar — 4 million tons to be exact, or 40 per cent of our sugar supply. Foreign sugar supplies come mainly from the Philippines, Mexico, Dominican Republic, and Peru. Coffee and sugar were the two biggest farm import items but many other things also were delivered to U.S. ports. We received meats and live cattle, vegetable oils and oil-bearing materials, tobacco, wool, fruits and vegetables, grains, dairy products, cotton, crude rubber, coca beans, and bananas.

Countries all over the world sent those things to us — New Zealand, Australia, Argentina, Canada, Italy, The Netherlands, Greece, Turkey, Uruguay, Switzerland, Denmark, Egypt, Pakistan, Syria, Iraq, Panama, Honduras, and Costa Rica.

"Eggs: Selection, Care, and Preparation"

All eggs need to be stored, covered, in the refrigerator. At room temperature, eggs can lose as much quality in three days as those kept for two weeks under proper conditions.

Eggs offer high quality nutrition at a low cost. When there is about 8 cents per dozen difference between prices of large and medium or medium and small eggs, the smaller size is the best buy.

Along with suggestions for selection and care of eggs, Cornell Extension Bulletin 915 includes directions for preparing this popular food. Instructions for freezing eggs are in this publication.

Mothers Day Observances Take on Religious Aspect

By JULES LOH
AP Staff Writer

If Anna Jarvis were alive today she might see some hope for Mothers Day after all. There are signs the annual observance is taking on some of the religious flavor Anna had in mind when she thought up the idea.

Mounting commercialization of Mothers Day left Anna Jarvis, ironically, without sympathy for the cause she created when she lay on her deathbed in 1948, blind, deaf and penniless.

Commercialization is more widespread than ever before—the estimate for this year is that sales will top $1 billion—but manifestations of the religious significance of the day also are apparent.

Special Services Used

The American Mothers Committee, the organization which selects the mother of the year, reports churches throughout the land are paying increasingly more attention to Mothers Day with special services and sermons. A number of firms which sell religious goods say they are beginning, at least, to share in the billion dollar bonanza.

The idea for an annual Mothers Day was born in a church house, and to Anna's way of thinking it never should have left it. A plaque on the lawn of Andrews Methodist Church in Grafton, W.Va., tells how it all began.

In post-Civil War days Anna's mother, a Sunday school teacher at the church, used to promote a spring picnic honoring the mothers of the community. The war had turned neighbor against neighbor, just as it had divided the state itself, and Mrs. Jarvis hoped to heal the scars by getting both Union and Confederate veterans to gather with their families for a Mothers Friendly Day.

On the second anniversary of her mother's death, May 9, 1907, Anna held memorial services at her home in Philadelphia, then set out on a crusade for a national holiday to honor the nation's mothers.

Same Text Used

The following year, and on the second Sunday in May every year thereafter, the Andrews Methodist Church in Grafton has held special Mothers Day services. The Rev. Virgil Gillum, the pastor, will use as Sunday's scripture text the same verse Dr. Harry C. Howard spoke from in 1908: "Woman behold thy son ... behold thy mother."

Anna Jarvis' campaign resulted in Congress passing a resolution in 1914, signed by President Woodrow Wilson, proclaiming an annual observance.

But as the commercial importance of the day grew so did Anna's disappointment. Gradually it turned to bitterness and she retreated from the world, rarely leaving her house except to tend her mother's grave. Acquaintances discovered her living in poverty, raised some money and put her in a sanitarium.

MOTHER

God gave us a treasure
Worth far more than gold;
No dearer possession
Could we ever behold.
And this dearest of genei
Can be replaced by no other;
What is it, you ask?
A wonderful mother.

Through her strength and her wisdom
We are what we are;
From infancy upward
She's been our Guiding Star. ...
In sickness and health,
In pain and in sorrow,
Mom shows us the way
To a brighter tomorrow.

With her smile of love
And a pat of her hand,
Mother gives us the courage
To understand.
God bless all the mothers
Both here and afar;
May this — Your Day — be happy
Wherever you are.

Bus Certificate Permanent for R-28 New Segment

ALBANY—The Public Service Commission has made permanent the certificate of public convenience and necessity held by Pine Hill-Kingston Bus Corporation for operation of an alternate bus route over the new segment of Route 28 between Highmount and Shandaken in Ulster County.

The company operates omnibus service between Kingston and Cooperstown via Oneonta. Its original route in the Town of Shandaken is via the old highway segment which has been bypassed by the reconstruction, on new alignment, of a portion of Route 28.

It obtained temporary authority late last year to operate some trips via the new highway as a means of affording through passengers faster service. It is continuing use of the old highway to serve local passengers.

In recommending the approval of the company's petition for permanent operating authority on the new segment of Route 28, Examiner Isadore E. Crade says, in a report to the Commission: "The proposed route will provide distinct advantages in saftey and service and should enable the petitioner to provide a more expeditious and efficient service between the points in question and between other points within its operating territory. A grant of the considered application is required by the public convenience and necessity."

Woman Changes Mind and Leaves, Road Okay Now

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Construction on a new Rochester highway will be able to continue now that a woman, who for weeks had refused to vacate her apartment, finally has moved.

Mrs. Eva Woods packed her belongings Friday and moved to a new residence with her teen-age son and dog. A moving company assured her she could take up to three months to pay for its services.

The building from which Mrs. Woods moved was the only one still standing in the way of construction work on Rochester's new "Inner Loop", since March she and her son had been the only tenants.

Search for Turtle Marked MVS 1913, En-Route 48 Years

An extensive search by civilians was underway in Dutchess County today for a turtle, with the initial M. V. S. and the date 1913 carved on its shell.

Mrs. Harold A. Sanford, of 40 Shufeldt Street, wife of retired Deputy Fire Chief Sanford, made known yesterday that a turtle found on May 5 in a wooded area of Red Oaks Mill, Town of Poughkeepsie, was the same turtle she saw on the Twaalfskill Country Club golf course on a Sunday afternoon in October, 1913.

Marked By Friend

Mrs. Sanford said a friend in a group with her on the golf course found the turtle and carved her initials M. V. S. (her name at that time was Mary V. Scully) and the year 1913 on the turtle's shell.

The turtle was found on May 5 by Michael Garrison, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Garrison, 14 Gale Drive, and a companion Sven Gudmundsen, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Finn T. Gudmundsen, of 133 Vassar Road, both of the Town of Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Sanford said yesterday she would like to have the turtle as a keepsake.

A Kingston Daily Freeman reporter talked with the father of the Garrison boy Friday at Poughkeepsie.

Garrison made it known that the turtle, which has been much publicized the last few days, had been put in a box by the boys who found it—and it escaped.

"The boys are out looking for it," Garrison said. When told of the publicity that followed Mrs. Sanford's disclosure of the initial and date carving incident in October, 1913. Garrison said:

Becomes Celebrity

"Well, if the turtle is that important and is in the limelight in the newspapers, I'm going to get all of my neighbors out for an all-out search to find it."

When asked if he would give the turtle to Mrs. Sanford if it is found, Garrison said," I certainly will make a royal presentation of the turtle to Mrs. Sanford."

Weaver, administrator of the Housing and Home Financing Agency in Washington, D. C., who will speak May 26 at 9:30 a. m. at the session on urban life.

One of the major issues facing the conference is the proposal to merge with the New York East Conference, thus forming a large administrative unit of 609 churches bearing the name of the New York Conference. The present dividing line is Third Avenue in New York City, the line extending northeast through Westchester County.

The conference will open May 23 at 10:30 a. m. with the Sacrament of Holy Communion administered by Bishop Wicke, the four district superintendents and the host pastor, the Rev. Dr. D. George Davies. Lincoln, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Walton, will preach the sermon and the Rev. Kenneth B. Truran of Margaretville will preside.

All boards and agencies will present annual reports and outline plans for the coming year.

Nearly three hours will be spent Saturday morning studying the situation of urban churches. In addition to Dr. Weaver's address, a film strip will be shown entitled, The Challenge of Change and a panel discussion will present the topic, The Future Is Now.

Mothers Day Observances Take on Religious Aspect

By JULES LOH
AP Staff Writer

If Anna Jarvis were alive today she might see some hope for Mothers Day after all. There are signs the annual observance is taking on some of the religious flavor Anna had in mind when she thought up the idea.

Mounting commercialization of Mothers Day left Anna Jarvis, ironically, without sympathy for the cause she created when she lay on her deathbed in 1948, blind, deaf and penniless.

Commercialization is more widespread than ever before—the estimate for this year is that sales will top $1 billion—but manifestations of the religious significance of the day also are apparent.

Special Services Used

The American Mothers Committee, the organization which selects the mother of the year, reports churches throughout the land are paying increasingly more attention to Mothers Day with special services and sermons. A number of firms which sell religious goods say they are beginning, at least, to share in the billion dollar bonanza.

The idea for an annual Mothers Day was born in a church house, and to Anna's way of thinking it never should have left it. A plaque on the lawn of Andrews Methodist Church in Grafton, W.Va., tells how it all began.

In post-Civil War days Anna's mother, a Sunday school teacher at the church, used to promote a spring picnic honoring the mothers of the community. The war had turned neighbor against neighbor, just as it had divided the state itself, and Mrs. Jarvis hoped to heal the scars by getting both Union and Confederate veterans to gather with their families for a Mothers Friendly Day.

On the second anniversary of her mother's death, May 9, 1907, Anna held memorial services at her home in Philadelphia, then set out on a crusade for a national holiday to honor the nation's mothers.

Same Text Used

The following year, and on the second Sunday in May every year thereafter, the Andrews Methodist Church in Grafton has held special Mothers Day services. The Rev. Virgil Gillum, the pastor, will use as Sunday's scripture text the same verse Dr. Harry C. Howard spoke from in 1908: "Woman behold thy son ... behold thy mother."

Anna Jarvis' campaign resulted in Congress passing a resolution in 1914, signed by President Woodrow Wilson, proclaiming an annual observance.

But as the commercial importance of the day grew so did Anna's disappointment. Gradually it turned to bitterness and she retreated from the world, rarely leaving her house except to tend her mother's grave. Acquaintances discovered her living in poverty, raised some money and put her in a sanitarium.

MOTHER

God gave us a treasure
Worth far more than gold;
No dearer possession
Could we ever behold.
And this dearest of genei
Can be replaced by no other;
What is it, you ask?
A wonderful mother.

Through her strength and her wisdom
We are what we are;
From infancy upward
She's been our Guiding Star. ...
In sickness and health,
In pain and in sorrow,
Mom shows us the way
To a brighter tomorrow.

With her smile of love
And a pat of her hand,
Mother gives us the courage
To understand.
God bless all the mothers
Both here and afar;
May this — Your Day — be happy
Wherever you are.

Bus Certificate Permanent for R-28 New Segment

ALBANY—The Public Service Commission has made permanent the certificate of public convenience and necessity held by Pine Hill-Kingston Bus Corporation for operation of an alternate bus route over the new segment of Route 28 between Highmount and Shandaken in Ulster County.

The company operates omnibus service between Kingston and Cooperstown via Oneonta. Its original route in the Town of Shandaken is via the old highway segment which has been bypassed by the reconstruction, on new alignment, of a portion of Route 28.

It obtained temporary authority late last year to operate some trips via the new highway as a means of affording through passengers faster service. It is continuing use of the old highway to serve local passengers.

In recommending the approval of the company's petition for permanent operating authority on the new segment of Route 28, Examiner Isadore E. Crade says, in a report to the Commission:

"The proposed route will provide distinct advantages in saftey and service and should enable the petitioner to provide a more expeditious and efficient service between the points in question and between other points within its operating territory. A grant of the considered application is required by the public convenience and necessity."

Woman Changes Mind and Leaves, Road Okay Now

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Construction on a new Rochester highway will be able to continue now that a woman, who for weeks had refused to vacate her apartment, finally has moved.

Mrs. Eva Woods packed her belongings Friday and moved to a new residence with her teen-age son and dog. A moving company assured her she could take up to three months to pay for its services.

The building from which Mrs. Woods moved was the only one still standing in the way of construction work on Rochester's new "Inner Loop", since March she and her son had been the only tenants.

Search for Turtle Marked MVS 1913, En-Route 48 Years

An extensive search by civilians was underway in Dutchess County today for a turtle, with the initial M. V. S. and the date 1913 carved on its shell.

Mrs. Harold A. Sanford, of 40 Shufeldt Street, wife of retired Deputy Fire Chief Sanford, made known yesterday that a turtle found on May 5 in a wooded area of Red Oaks Mill, Town of Poughkeepsie, was the same turtle she saw on the Twaalfskill Country Club golf course on a Sunday afternoon in October, 1913.

Marked By Friend

Mrs. Sanford said a friend in a group with her on the golf course found the turtle and carved her initials M. V. S. (her name at that time was Mary V. Scully) and the year 1913 on the turtle's shell.

The turtle was found on May 5 by Michael Garrison, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Garrison, 14 Gale Drive, and a companion Sven Gudmundsen, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Finn T. Gudmundsen, of 133 Vassar Road, both of the Town of Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Sanford said yesterday she would like to have the turtle as a keepsake.

A Kingston Daily Freeman reporter talked with the father of the Garrison boy Friday at Poughkeepsie.

Garrison made it known that the turtle, which has been much publicized the last few days, had been put in a box by the boys who found it—and it escaped.

"The boys are out looking for it," Garrison said. When told of the publicity that followed Mrs. Sanford's disclosure of the initial and date carving incident in October, 1913, Garrison said:

Becomes Celebrity

"Well, if the turtle is that important and is in the limelight in the newspapers, I'm going to get all of my neighbors out for an all-out search to find it."

When asked if he would give the turtle to Mrs. Sanford if it is found, Garrison said," I certainly will make a royal presentation of the turtle to Mrs. Sanford."

Children's Room At Library Is Proving Popular

The Children's Room of the Kingston City Library has been the host of several nursery school classes visiting this spring, the library reported recently. The children aged three and four, have enjoyed Mrs. William D. Markle's story telling and their own selection of books from the Picture Book Shelves.

The children politely and with rapt attention listened to stories about horses, bears and kittens.

Among the nursery schools that have visited the Children's Room are the Jewish Community Center and the Fair Street Nursery.

The ABC of cars and trucks by Anne Alexander, other ABC books and Mother Goose are among the most popular.

Ring of Roses by Leslie Brooke is a book of verse and the children enjoy poetry. Also Father Bear Stories by Elsie Minarik and other animal family stories are favorites.

The Children's Room has a great variety of fiction, adventure, biography and science books for first through sixth grades.

Rondout Valley Adult Group to Show Paintings

The year-end comprehensive exhibit by members of the adult education class in drawing and painting, at the Rondout Valley Central School, Kyserike, will be held Tuesday night, 8 p. m. in the cafeteria.

For the past two years the classes have been under the direction of James Kaman of Hurley. Work exhibited will cover practically all media and subject matter, from landscapes in watercolor to oil portraits.

There was an emphasis this year on group criticisms, which were held at the start of each period. The class found this a valuable method of subjecting work to many points of view, as well as a means of overcoming subjectivity in their self-criticism. Comments by the instructor are frank, but friendly, with students' progress a constant consideration.

Several demonstrations in various media were given by Mr. Kaman. Several oil portraits, oil portraits, still lifes and watercolor landscapes were painted over the course of the season.

Mr. Kaman has been invited back to direct the same course of study next year at Rondout Valley, and beginning students and advanced amateurs in the area may attend. Classes are from 7 to 9 p. m. Tuesdays, and will resume in the fall. Persons interested may contact Charles Ayasse at the Rondout Valley Central School, Kyserike.

According to some guys, the way to approach the girl with a past is with a present.

Home Painters Get All Gear In One Package

KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Changing an interior color scheme is only one reason for the spring painting many of us must plan. In our house, we like the colors the way they are. The villain adding extra work to my spring decorating is the snow we had in such abundance this winter. When it melted, it left behind some water-spotted walls and ceilings.

I know I'm not alone with the problem because I've heard our local paint dealer explaining patiently to other homemakers how snow and ice melting way up there on the roof can lead to dribble marks and stains inside.

Sills on windows placed low to the ground where snow heaped up may show effects of the hard winter, too. Driving rains, sand and dust storms can also inflict interior damage which necessitates redecorating or at least touching up.

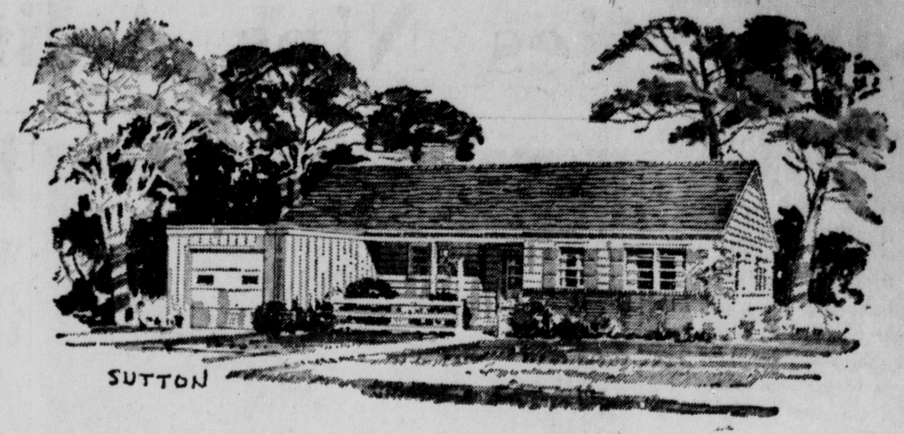

One hindrance to my painting projects is lack of preparation. I may remember to get the paint but when I'm ready to start I can't find a decent brush, the roller is stiff and paint-crusted and I locate the protective plastic drop cloth draped over an oily outboard motor.

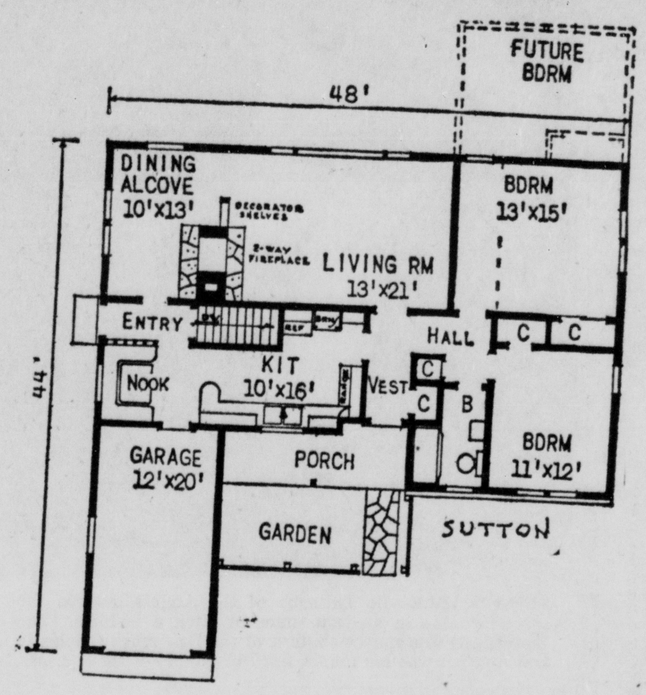

An answer to this dilemma is a new paint pack designed for Sunday painters like myself. The pack includes in one box, four quarts of a quality acrylic paint packed in disposable plastic bags, a disposable cardboard paint tray, a dynel roller, a two-inch nylon-bristled brush for trim and a plastic drop cloth.

The pack is made by a long-time paint manufacturer and the paint itself, in slightly different formulation, has been sold in quart and gallon cans. The four quarts in the pack are enough for a 9 by 12 room.

This type of acrylic paint is said to cover in one coat. If the wall has been stained, loose paint will have to be removed, the wall sanded and spot-primed with acrylic paint. Windowsills, too, can be lightly sanded to remove stains and spot-primed. Let the paint dry for 30 minutes, then cover with a complete coat.

When we tried this paint at a friend's house, an interesting point came up. Extensive research had preceded the choice of nine colors available. These are so close to the most popular interior colors that one might not have to repaint an entire room if only one or two walls and the window sills needed refurbishing. The Tahitian sand tone of the acrylic paint we used was almost an exact match of the color on the walls. The colonial yellow is so close to the color in our dinette that even if I make some mistakes in painting they shouldn't be too noticeable.

Maximum Privacy, Comfort And Housekeeping Ease

By JACK McELENEY

The arrangement of the various rooms in "The Sutton," todays' home by Associated Architects, can be described in a single word, "superlative"! Through the simple device of having each room radiate from a central vestibule, this house offers maximum possible privacy, comfort and ease of housekeeping.

A glance at the floor plan will show exactly what we mean. Picture yourself walking in the front door. Hang your coat in the vestibule closet, and take your choice of rooms. Turn right to reach the bathroom or bedrooms; left leads to the kitchen, straight ahead leads to the living room and dining alcove.

There are two other entrances—one at the side leading to the kitchen and the basement steps; the other, a direct door from the garage. All doorways, in other words, are placed for greatest convenience.

This is an expandable house. The original plan, as drawn in the blueprints, shows two bedrooms, but there is provision for a third bedroom, which may be added later with no trouble at all; all this is shown in dotted lines on the floor plan.

The living room faces to the rear and that is where privacy comes in, since most homes, new or old, having living rooms at the front. The one in "The Sutton," 13 by 21 feet, has a big picture window. Adjoining is a 10 by 13-foot dining alcove, dramatically separated by a two-way stone fireplace; that is, one opening into both rooms. A decorator shelf unit extending from floor to ceiling is a neat touch that is a delight to the eye. Practical, too, since it is a natural display point for plants or bric-a-brac.

There's not an inch of wasted space in the kitchen, yet Associated Architects have made it a completely comfortable room in which to work. However you look at it, running a home is nothing more or less than a chore, but a well-designed kitchen like this takes much of the weight off the housewife's back.

Here's why: Appliances, counters and cabinets are arranged in corridor form, one of the best step-saving combinations known to home economists. With the kitchen facing front, the woman of the house always can tell who is coming down the path. Over to the side of the kitchen is a breakfast nook, put there to take the strain from serving in the dining room. Why bother leaving the kitchen if you're just going to have a snack?

We've had time only to mention a few of the highlights of this unusual home. And we think you'll want to see all of the details for yourself. To make this possible, Associated Architects are distributing working drawings of "The Sutton," along with a complete list of the building materials needed for construction. These blueprints will also enable you to obtain firm estimates from contractors, should you decide to make comparisons. As an extra you'll receive, with the blueprints, a valuable contract form, designed to protect your interest. Just fill in the coupon below.

The house not only has beauty and utility; it follows the strict property and construction standards of the Federal Housing Administration. That fact will enable you to obtain an FHA-backed mortgage more readily. As for fire safety, electrical wiring is done along the lines suggested by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

When you send for plans, please say if you want the set with basement (27,000 cubic feet) or without (23,200 cubic feet). In the latter the heating plant goes into the basement stairs area. Either plan shows how "The Sutton" may be built of wood or brick siding, or concrete block.

'Big' Trick

You can make a small room look larger by using a diagonal layout of the floor tiles. Tiles laid in this manner create the illusion of space because the eye tends to "linger longer" over diagonal lines. This treatment is particularly effective in entranceways, bathrooms, kitchens and outdoor patios. The many colors available in real tile will assure an attractive installation, and the homemaker will like it because tile is easily cleaned and durable.

Outdoor Living Remains Popular; Season Is Here

From Connecticut to California, outdoor living continues to be the hottest trend in American home life.

Whether giving a party, barbecueing a steak or taking a nap, everyone's going outdoors to do it.

Screened-in, well floored outdoor "rooms" or patios permit informal back-to-nature living without making sacrifices to the scorching sun or insects. More and more persons are choosing patios floored with quarry tile, a tough, durable, colorful surface that won't crack or stain. Heat from the barbecue will not bother it, nor will cooking grease and oils cause discoloration or a major clean-up job.

With the season for outdoor living rapidly approaching, now is the time to consider adding an outdoor living area, either as a do-it-yourself project or by having it done.

Patios also provide added bonuses, such as a good place for children to play on rainy days and an entranceway for muddy feet.

Tile Stairwells

Stairwells present one of the most difficult—and dangerous—areas to paint in split-level and two-story homes. You won't ever have to tackle this back-breaking job again if you surface your stairwell with ceramic tile. The many colors, sizes and patterns available in real tile will enable you to add permanent beauty to your home.

Kitchen Peninsula

Do you need additional counter and storage space in your kitchen? For many, the solution lies in a peninsula serving area. For durability and beauty, surface the countertop with a material that can't be burned or scratched, such as ceramic tile. To save steps, have cabinet doors on both sides of the peninsula.

Table Design

Legend explains the design of King Arthur's Round Table by stating that he had the table built round so that it would have neither head nor foot, thus allowing him to sit among his knights as a man among equals.

Home Painters Get All Gear In One Package

KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Changing an interior color scheme is only one reason for the spring painting many of us must plan. In our house, we like the colors the way they are. The villain adding extra work to my spring decorating is the snow we had in such abundance this winter. When it melted, it left behind some water-spotted walls and ceilings.

I know I'm not alone with the problem because I've heard our local paint dealer explaining patiently to other homemakers how snow and ice melting way up there on the roof can lead to dribble marks and stains inside.

Sills on windows placed low to the ground where snow heaped up may show effects of the hard winter, too. Driving rains, sand and dust storms can also inflict interior damage which necessitates redecorating or at least touching up.

One hindrance to my painting projects is lack of preparation. I may remember to get the paint but when I'm ready to start I can't find a decent brush, the roller is stiff and paint-crusted and I locate the protective plastic drop cloth draped over an oily outboard motor.

An answer to this dilemma is a new paint pack designed for Sunday painters like myself. The pack includes in one box, four quarts of a quality acrylic paint packed in disposable plastic bags, a disposable cardboard paint tray, a dynel roller, a two-inch nylon-bristled brush for trim and a plastic drop cloth.

The pack is made by a long-time paint manufacturer and the paint itself, in slightly different formulation, has been sold in quart and gallon cans. The four quarts in the pack are enough for a 9 by 12 room.

This type of acrylic paint is said to cover in one coat. If the wall has been stained, loose paint will have to be removed, the wall sanded and spot-primed with acrylic paint. Windowsills, too, can be lightly sanded to remove stains and spot-primed. Let the paint dry for 30 minutes, then cover with a complete coat.

When we tried this paint at a friend's house, an interesting point came up. Extensive research had preceded the choice of nine colors available. These are so close to the most popular interior colors that one might not have to repaint an entire room if only one or two walls and the window sills needed refurbishing. The Tahitian sand tone of the acrylic paint we used was almost an exact match of the color on the walls. The colonial yellow is so close to the color in our dinette that even if I make some mistakes in painting they shouldn't be too noticeable.

Maximum Privacy, Comfort And Housekeeping Ease

By JACK McELENEY

The arrangement of the various rooms in "The Sutton," todays' home by Associated Architects, can be described in a single word, "superlative"! Through the simple device of having each room radiate from a central vestibule, this house offers maximum possible privacy, comfort and ease of housekeeping.

A glance at the floor plan will show exactly what we mean. Picture yourself walking in the front door. Hang your coat in the vestibule closet, and take your choice of rooms. Turn right to reach the bathroom or bedrooms; left leads to the kitchen, straight ahead leads to the living room and dining alcove.

There are two other entrances—one at the side leading to the kitchen and the basement steps; the other, a direct door from the garage. All doorways, in other words, are placed for greatest convenience.

This is an expandable house. The original plan, as drawn in the blueprints, shows two bedrooms, but there is provision for a third bedroom, which may be added later with no trouble at all; all this is shown in dotted lines on the floor plan.

The living room faces to the rear and that is where privacy comes in, since most homes, new or old, having living rooms at the front. The one in "The Sutton," 13 by 21 feet, has a big picture window. Adjoining is a 10 by 13-foot dining alcove, dramatically separated by a two-way stone fireplace; that is, one opening into both rooms. A decorator shelf unit extending from floor to ceiling is a neat touch that is a delight to the eye. Practical, too, since it is a natural display point for plants or bric-a-brac.

There's not an inch of wasted space in the kitchen, yet Associated Architects have made it a completely comfortable room in which to work. However you look at it, running a home is nothing more or less than a chore, but a well-designed kitchen like this takes much of the weight off the housewife's back.

Here's why: Appliances, counters and cabinets are arranged in corridor form, one of the best step-saving combinations known to home economists. With the kitchen facing front, the woman of the house always can tell who is coming down the path. Over to the side of the kitchen is a breakfast nook, put there to take the strain from serving in the dining room. Why bother leaving the kitchen if you're just going to have a snack?

We've had time only to mention a few of the highlights of this unusual home. And we think you'll want to see all of the details for yourself. To make this possible, Associated Architects are distributing working drawings of "The Sutton," along with a complete list of the building materials needed for construction. These blueprints will also enable you to obtain firm estimates from contractors, should you decide to make comparisons. As an extra you'll receive, with the blueprints, a valuable contract form, designed to protect your interest. Just fill in the coupon below.

The house not only has beauty and utility; it follows the strict property and construction standards of the Federal Housing Administration. That fact will enable you to obtain an FHA-backed mortgage more readily. As for fire safety, electrical wiring is done along the lines suggested by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

When you send for plans, please say if you want the set with basement (27,000 cubic feet) or without (23,200 cubic feet). In the latter the heating plant goes into the basement stairs area. Either plan shows how "The Sutton" may be built of wood or brick siding, or concrete block.

'Big' Trick

You can make a small room look larger by using a diagonal layout of the floor tiles. Tiles laid in this manner create the illusion of space because the eye tends to "linger longer" over diagonal lines. This treatment is particularly effective in entranceways, bathrooms, kitchens and outdoor patios. The many colors available in real tile will assure an attractive installation, and the homemaker will like it because tile is easily cleaned and durable.

Outdoor Living Remains Popular; Season Is Here

From Connecticut to California, outdoor living continues to be the hottest trend in American home life.

Whether giving a party, barbecueing a steak or taking a nap, everyone's going outdoors to do it.

Screened-in, well floored outdoor "rooms" or patios permit informal back-to-nature living without making sacrifices to the scorching sun or insects. More and more persons are choosing patios floored with quarry tile, a tough, durable, colorful surface that won't crack or stain. Heat from the barbecue will not bother it, nor will cooking grease and oils cause discoloration or a major clean-up job.

With the season for outdoor living rapidly approaching, now is the time to consider adding an outdoor living area, either as a do-it-yourself project or by having it done.

Patios also provide added bonuses, such as a good place for children to play on rainy days and an entranceway for muddy feet.

Tile Stairwells

Stairwells present one of the most difficult—and dangerous—areas to paint in split-level and two-story homes. You won't ever have to tackle this back-breaking job again if you surface your stairwell with ceramic tile. The many colors, sizes and patterns available in real tile will enable you to add permanent beauty to your home.

Kitchen Peninsula

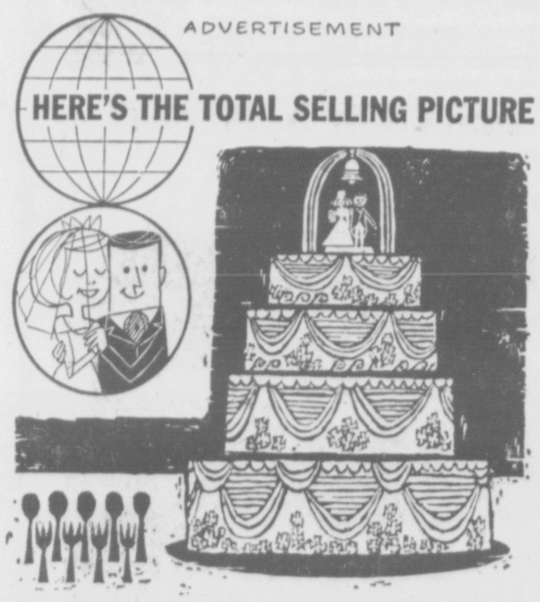

Do you need additional counter and storage space in your kitchen? For many, the solution lies in a peninsula serving area. For durability and beauty, surface the countertop with a material that can't be burned or scratched, such as ceramic tile. To save steps, have cabinet doors on both sides of the peninsula.

Table Design

Legend explains the design of King Arthur's Round Table by stating that he had the table built round so that it would have neither head nor foot, thus allowing him to sit among his knights as a man among equals.

Saugerties Nips Arlington, 8-7, in the Eighth Inning

Spada's Safety Decides Tilt; Curley Wins It

Lou Spada unloaded a booming triple in the last of the eighth inning to score Paul Buytkins from second base and earn the Saugerties High Sawyers a come-from-behind 8-7 DCSL win over visiting Arlington yesterday.

The hit by Spada earned relief pitcher Jim Curley the decision. Jim Relieved starter Ron May in the second and held the visitors to one run the rest of the way.

The Sawyers trailed, 6-1, after the beginning of the second but they pounded Bob Hoe, the Arlington ave, for runs in each of the next four frames, knotting the game in the fifth and then winning it in the eighth.

It was the first circuit defeat for Fritz Jordan's club while the Sawyers are 1-2 in the league and 8-5 for the season. Saugerties will play at Kingston on Monday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A powerful surge after the turn for home carried Cathy J. Hanover to victory Friday night over the odds-on favorite, Ritzy Hanover, in the $38,810 Lady Maud Stakes at Roosevelt Raceway.

Cathy J. Hanover was driven by Stanley Dancer and paced the mile in 2:02. The three-year-old finished a length and a quarter ahead of Ritzy Hanover.

Schatzel-Balash 8th In Class A Doubles

Rose Schatzel and Sis Balash supplied the only major change in the first squad of weekend keglers last night in the Women's Bowling Tournament.

The local pair rapped 1091 in the doubles, placing them in a tie for eighth place. They had a chance to pass the 1145 first place score but Mrs. Schatzel missed in the 10th frame of the final game and Mrs. Balash missed spares in both the 9th and 10th frames.

Rose rolled 155-205-193-553 while Sis had 209-158-171-538. Their 1091 series ties them with Kay Dusel and Ann Brown of Rochester for 8th place.

In the singles, Mrs. Schatzel rolled 529. Her six game total is 1082 and she needs a 688 in the team event in order to tie the 1770 all-events total of Barbara Korthas of Syracuse.

Other top doubles teams on the first shift last night did not make the top ten.

Leading the shooting tonight will be Luscher's Tornadoes of Rochester and Dic Concrete Corp. of Elmont. They will roll in the team event on lanes 13 and 14 at the Bowlero, beginning at 9:30.

Keglers from those teams, led by the famed Marion Turash, will roll doubles and singles Sunday on the 3 p. m. squad.

Pine Bush Defeats Rondout Club, 8-2

Jacksonville In 1st Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Jacksonville Suns were back in first place in the International League today with a big assist from the Atlanta Crackers.

The Suns defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-1, in 10 innings Friday night, but the victory would have not meant a thing if the Crackers hadn't snapped a seven - game losing streak by downing the Buffalo Bisons, 6-5.

That pushed the Suns a half-game ahead of the Bisons. The Rochester Red Wings hung a game and a half out with a 4-2 victory over the Richmond Virginians, while the Syracuse Chiefs won their seventh game in their last eight by turning back the Columbus Jets, 6-2.

John Lunney hurled a four-hitter and Ray Bruyn rapped a double and two singles to lead Pine Bush to an 8-2 UCAL verdict over the visiting Rondout Valley Ganders yesterday.

The home team broke a 2-2 tie with a run in the fourth and then added four in the fifth, knocking out loser Gordie Bell.

Lynn Johnson stroked a double and single for Rondout.

Has Fractured Skull

Minnie Minoso Lost For Several Weeks

By IRWIN FRANK

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Minnie Minoso who fractured his skull in a diving crash against the leftfield wall, will be out "at least several weeks," and the loss of the colorful veteran is a severe blow to the pennant-hopeful St. Louis Cardinals.

Dr. Stan London said Minoso will be sidelined "for a considerable period, at least several weeks."

The fracture is three or four inches long, above the right ear. Dr. London said the "bones were in good position and Minoso's condition is satisfactory. There is no pressure on the brain now. However, the fracture is in a place that could cause trouble."

The 39-year-old Cuban never hit stride this season because of a rib muscle pulled in mid-april. Nevertheless, the Redbirds were counting on his hitting and fiery base running to keep them in the race.

Minoso was hurt on the key play of Friday night's game, chasing Duke Snider's three-run pinch triple in the sixth inning. It broke a 2-2 tie and led to an 8-5 victory for he Los Angeles Dodgers, moving them into second place.

Minoso was knocked unconscious. He slid into the wall, said Cardinal trainer Bob Abuman, "with the frontal part of his head." Minoso's right eye was completely closed and his head and face were swollen and bleeding.

Player Has Edge Over Palmer

FORT WORTH, Tex., (AP)—Gary Player, who says his putting runs in streaks and right now it's sizzling, carried a one-shot lead into the third round of the $40,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament today.

The scrappy South African, whose moods vary with his golf game, was jubilant Friday after he fired an even-par 70 to snatch the lead from Arnold Palmer.

Player had a 36-hole total of 138, a shot ahead of Palmer and Johnny Pott.

The personable Player — who dressed in black from head-to-toe because, he contends, it gives him a feeling of strength—sank an 80-foot birdie putt on the eighth hole to highlight his day.

He started with birdies on the first two holes, sinking a 6-foot putt on the first and chipping in from 30 feet on the second.

He rammed home a 10-foot putt for a par on the final hole to take the lead and exclaimed later:

"I had the best putting round today that I've had in a year."

It was a bad day generally for golfdom's elite as a tricky wind swept the 7,112-yard layout. None of the remaining field of 55 cracked par and only four equalled it. This contrasted sharply with Thursday's round when nine bettered par and Palmer took the lead with a 3-under- 67.

Second round leaders:

Gary Player	68-70—138
Arnold Palmer	67-72—139

Saugerties Nips Arlington, 8-7, in the Eighth Inning

Spada's Safety Decides Tilt; Curley Wins It

Lou Spada unloaded a booming triple in the last of the eighth inning to score Paul Buytkins from second base and earn the Saugerties High Sawyers a come-from-behind 8-7 DCSL win over visiting Arlington yesterday.

The hit by Spada earned relief pitcher Jim Curley the decision. Jim Relieved starter Ron May in the second and held the visitors to one run the rest of the way.

The Sawyers trailed, 6-1, after the beginning of the second but they pounded Bob Hoe, the Arlington ave, for runs in each of the next four frames, knotting the game in the fifth and then winning it in the eighth.

It was the first circuit defeat for Fritz Jordan's club while the Sawyers are 1-2 in the league and 8-5 for the season. Saugerties will play at Kingston on Monday.

Schatzel-Balash 8th In Class A Doubles

Rose Schatzel and Sis Balash supplied the only major change in the first squad of weekend keglers last night in the Women's Bowling Tournament.

The local pair rapped 1091 in the doubles, placing them in a tie for eighth place. They had a chance to pass the 1145 first place score but Mrs. Schatzel missed in the 10th frame of the final game and Mrs. Balash missed spares in both the 9th and 10th frames.

Rose rolled 155-205-193-553 while Sis had 209-158-171-538. Their 1091 series ties them with Kay Dusel and Ann Brown of Rochester for 8th place.

In the singles, Mrs. Schatzel rolled 529. Her six game total is 1082 and she needs a 688 in the team event in order to tie the 1770 all-events total of Barbara Korthas of Syracuse.

Other top doubles teams on the first shift last night did not make the top ten.

Leading the shooting tonight will be Luscher's Tornadoes of Rochester and Dic Concrete Corp. of Elmont. They will roll in the team event on lanes 13 and 14 at the Bowlero, beginning at 9:30.

Keglers from those teams, led by the famed Marion Turash, will roll doubles and singles Sunday on the 3 p. m. squad.

Pine Bush Defeats Rondout Club, 8-2

Jacksonville In 1st Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Jacksonville Suns were back in first place in the International League today with a big assist from the Atlanta Crackers.

The Suns defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-1, in 10 innings Friday night, but the victory would have not meant a thing if the Crackers hadn't snapped a seven - game losing streak by downing the Buffalo Bisons, 6-5.

That pushed the Suns a half-game ahead of the Bisons. The Rochester Red Wings hung a game and a half out with a 4-2 victory over the Richmond Virginians, while the Syracuse Chiefs won their seventh game in their last eight by turning back the Columbus Jets, 6-2.

John Lunney hurled a four-hitter and Ray Bruyn rapped a double and two singles to lead Pine Bush to an 8-2 UCAL verdict over the visiting Rondout Valley Ganders yesterday.

The home team broke a 2-2 tie with a run in the fourth and then added four in the fifth, knocking out loser Gordie Bell.

Lynn Johnson stroked a double and single for Rondout.

The scrappy South African, whose moods vary with his golf game, was jubilant Friday after he fired an even-par 70 to snatch the lead from Arnold Palmer.

Player had a 36-hole total of 138, a shot ahead of Palmer and Johnny Pott.

The personable Player — who dressed in black from head-to-toe because, he contends, it gives him a feeling of strength—sank an 80-foot birdie putt on the eighth hole to highlight his day.

He started with birdies on the first two holes, sinking a 6-foot putt on the first and chipping in from 30 feet on the second.

He rammed home a 10-foot putt for a par on the final hole to take the lead and exclaimed later:

"I had the best putting round today that I've had in a year."

It was a bad day generally for golfdom's elite as a tricky wind swept the 7,112-yard layout. None of the remaining field of 55 cracked par and only four equalled it. This contrasted sharply with Thursday's round when nine bettered par and Palmer took the lead with a 3-under- 67.

Second round leaders:

Gary Player	68-70—138
Arnold Palmer	67-72—139
Johnny Pott	69-70—139

Cards Lose Minoso and Game; Belinsky Earns 5th Straight

Veteran Crashes Into Wall While Chasing Triple

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a sad, frustrating evening for the suddenly-stricken St. Louis Cardinals.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, apparently on the move, whipped the Cards 8-5 Friday night and replaced St. Louis in second place in the National League standings.

Perhaps of even more importance, however, was an injury to veteran Cardinal outfielder Minnie Minoso, carried from the field on a stretcher after crashing headlong into a concrete fence while chasing a fly ball.

Minoso, 39, counted on to give the Cards important hitting help, was knocked unconscious. He was rushed to a hospital where a diagnosis indicated he had a skull fracture.

The victory extended the Dodgers' modest string to four straight and—with a big assist from former teammate Dick Farrell — allowed them to clip a full game off San Francisco's leading margin.

Whitewashes Giants

Farrell, a big, fast Houston right-hander drafted from the Dodgers for $125,000, helped his old mates' relative standing with a sterling 7-0 shutout of San Francisco that cut the Giants' lead to three games.

Cincinnati scored a 3-2 come-from-behind decision in 10 innings over Pittsburgh: Milwaukee stood off the New York Mets 8-5, and Philadelphia blasted the Chicago Cubs 12-2.

It was not known immediately how long Minoso would be lost to the Cardinals. He was injured while chasing a pinch-hit triple by veteran Duke Snider that drove in three runs, snapped a 2-2 tie, and put the Dodgers ahead to stay. Rookie Larry Burright also drove in three runs with two singles.

Stan Musial, one short of Hans Wagner's National League record of 3,430 hits, was held hitless for the second straight night.

Farrell, 6 feet 4 and a 220-pounder, struck out nine in handing the Giants their first shutout of the season. He was touched for six hits but got tough with men on base. Farrell, now 3-2, also stroked a solo homer as he went the distance for the second time in a row.

Pitcher's Battle

Right-handers Joey Jay (4-3) of Cincinnati and Al McBean (3-1) of the Pirates struggled through nine scoreless innings before the Pirates struck for two in the top of the 10th. The Redlegs, however, replied with three in their half of the inning on a walk, a sacrifice and singles by Don Zimmer, Vada Pinson, Joe Gaines and Frank Robinson.

Del Crandall drove in four runs with a double and two singles in Milwaukee's victory, but the Braves had to stand off a last-gasp Met threat in the ninth. Trailing 8-2, the Mets got started against Bob Shaw (3-1), chased in three runs, and had the bases loaded before relief man Don Nottebart got Charlie Neal on a called third strike to end it.

Don Demeter was the big gun in Philadelphia's 16-hit attack against Chicago. He drove in six runs on the second grand-slam homer of his career, a single and a sacrifice fly. Outfielder Johnny Callison and Ted Savage got four hits each for the Phillies, who have now won six of their last eight.

Esopus Giants Get 8-6 Win

Bob Whitaker slapped a double in the last of the fifth inning to give the Giants an 8-6 win over the Indians in an Esopus Legion Little League game yesterday.

Orlando Landi and Dick Kren hurled for the winners and Doug Freeman took the loss.

Freeman aided his cause with a home run, double and single in three trips.

The line score:

Rookie Forced To Leave Tilt In 8th Frame

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's puzzlement, this meteoric rise to stardom of Los Angeles' Bo Belinsky, who came to camp more celebrated as a pool shark than a pitcher but is finding it just as easy to pop one in the catchers mitt as shoot one in the side pocket.

Making his first start since he pitched a no-hitter last Saturday, the 25-year-old rookie left-hander won his fifth game without a loss as the Angels whipped the Chicago White Sox 4-2 Friday night and moved into third place in the American League.

Belinsky held the White Sox to six hits and two runs before a grounder by Al Smith in the eighth inning bounced off his leg and forced him from the game. He struck out 11 before leaving, lowering his earned run average to an amazing 1.70.

Grant Does Job

The Cleveland Indians got a solid pitching performance from Army Pvt. Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who limited the league-leading New York Yankees to five hits in a 7-1 victory that pulled Cleveland to within a half-game of first place. The Angels are 2½ back.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit beat Boston 5-1 behind Paul Foytack's five-hitter; Washington used an 11-run inning to clobber Baltimore 12-1, and Kansas City edged Minnesota 5-3 in a game halted by rain with two out in the last of the eighth inning.

The White Sox scored the first run off Belinsky in 14 1-3 innings with a walk, a single by Smith and an infield out in the sixth inning. They got their other when Smith's single drove in Nellie Fox and drove out Belinsky. Art Fowler came on to finish up. The Angels, meanwhile, had put it away in the fourth, getting two runs for a 3-0 lead when Joe Koppe singled with the bases loaded.

Grant (2-0), on furlough from the Army, had a string of 16 2-3 scoreless innings before Moose Skowron accounted for the Yankee's only run with a homer in the eighth. The Indians jumped off to a quick 3-0 lead against Ralph Terry (4-3) with three in the third as Don Dillard homered and John Romano tripled, then used Woodie Held's two-run homer to spark a four-run seventh that iced it.

Cash Clears Park

Foytack (1-0), allowed only one unearned run. A two-run homer by Chico Fernandez off Don Schwall (1-4) in the second inning put the Tigers ahead to stay and Norm Cash made it 3-0 in the sixth with his eighth homer, cracking a roof-clearing shot for only the sixth fair ball ever hit out of Tiger Stadium.

Gene Woodling's grand slam homer was the big blow in the Senators 11-run sixth inning explosion that beat the Orioles. Ten consecutive batters reached base successfully.

The Twins had the tying runs on base when, after an hour's wait, the game was called. The A's had snapped a 3-3 tie in the sixth on singles by Norm Siebern and Gino Cimoli, two walks and an error.

Cards Lose Minoso and Game; Belinsky Earns 5th Straight

Veteran Crashes Into Wall While Chasing Triple

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a sad, frustrating evening for the suddenly-stricken St. Louis Cardinals.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, apparently on the move, whipped the Cards 8-5 Friday night and replaced St. Louis in second place in the National League standings.

Perhaps of even more importance, however, was an injury to veteran Cardinal outfielder Minnie Minoso, carried from the field on a stretcher after crashing headlong into a concrete fence while chasing a fly ball.

Minoso, 39, counted on to give the Cards important hitting help, was knocked unconscious. He was rushed to a hospital where a diagnosis indicated he had a skull fracture.

The victory extended the Dodgers' modest string to four straight and—with a big assist from former teammate Dick Farrell — allowed them to clip a full game off San Francisco's leading margin.

Whitewashes Giants

Farrell, a big, fast Houston right-hander drafted from the Dodgers for $125,000, helped his old mates' relative standing with a sterling 7-0 shutout of San Francisco that cut the Giants' lead to three games.

Cincinnati scored a 3-2 come-from-behind decision in 10 innings over Pittsburgh: Milwaukee stood off the New York Mets 8-5, and Philadelphia blasted the Chicago Cubs 12-2.

It was not known immediately how long Minoso would be lost to the Cardinals. He was injured while chasing a pinch-hit triple by veteran Duke Snider that drove in three runs, snapped a 2-2 tie, and put the Dodgers ahead to stay. Rookie Larry Burright also drove in three runs with two singles.

Stan Musial, one short of Hans Wagner's National League record of 3,430 hits, was held hitless for the second straight night.

Farrell, 6 feet 4 and a 220-pounder, struck out nine in handing the Giants their first shutout of the season. He was touched for six hits but got tough with men on base. Farrell, now 3-2, also stroked a solo homer as he went the distance for the second time in a row.

Pitcher's Battle

Right-handers Joey Jay (4-3) of Cincinnati and Al McBean (3-1) of the Pirates struggled through nine scoreless innings before the Pirates struck for two in the top of the 10th. The Redlegs, however, replied with three in their half of the inning on a walk, a sacrifice and singles by Don Zimmer, Vada Pinson, Joe Gaines and Frank Robinson.

Del Crandall drove in four runs with a double and two singles in Milwaukee's victory, but the Braves had to stand off a last-gasp Met threat in the ninth. Trailing 8-2, the Mets got started against Bob Shaw (3-1), chased in three runs, and had the bases loaded before relief man Don Nottebart got Charlie Neal on a called third strike to end it.

Don Demeter was the big gun in Philadelphia's 16-hit attack against Chicago. He drove in six runs on the second grand-slam homer of his career, a single and a sacrifice fly. Outfielder Johnny Callison and Ted Savage got four hits each for the Phillies, who have now won six of their last eight.

Little Leaguers

Esopus Giants Get 8-6 Win

Bob Whitaker slapped a double in the last of the fifth inning to give the Giants an 8-6 win over the Indians in an Esopus Legion Little League game yesterday.

Orlando Landi and Dick Kren hurled for the winners and Doug Freeman took the loss.

Freeman aided his cause with a home run, double and single in three trips.

The line score:

	R	H
Indians	2 0 1 3 0 0—6	7
Giants	0 1 3 1 3 x—8	4

National LL Opens May 26

The National Little League opens its 12th season on Saturday, May 26, with the VFW drum corps leading the players and league personnel from Broadway and Delaware Ave. to Shults Stadium. Opening day ceremonies will begin from the field at 1:15 p. m.

Six teams will participate in the league this year. The new one will be the Giants. A complete roster will be made known next week.

The response to the booster card and letter of explanation sent in the league area has been good. Those who have not answered will be contacted during the coming week.

Today is work day for the league and those interested are expected to be in attendance to display their painting and clean-up talents.

Rookie Forced To Leave Tilt In 8th Frame

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's puzzlement, this meteoric rise to stardom of Los Angeles' Bo Belinsky, who came to camp more celebrated as a pool shark than a pitcher but is finding it just as easy to pop one in the catchers mitt as shoot one in the side pocket.

Making his first start since he pitched a no-hitter last Saturday, the 25-year-old rookie left-hander won his fifth game without a loss as the Angels whipped the Chicago White Sox 4-2 Friday night and moved into third place in the American League.

Belinsky held the White Sox to six hits and two runs before a grounder by Al Smith in the eighth inning bounced off his leg and forced him from the game. He struck out 11 before leaving, lowering his earned run average to an amazing 1.70.

Grant Does Job

The Cleveland Indians got a solid pitching performance from Army Pvt. Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who limited the league-leading New York Yankees to five hits in a 7-1 victory that pulled Cleveland to within a half-game of first place. The Angels are 2½ back.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit beat Boston 5-1 behind Paul Foytack's five-hitter; Washington used an 11-run inning to clobber Baltimore 12-1, and Kansas City edged Minnesota 5-3 in a game halted by rain with two out in the last of the eighth inning.

The White Sox scored the first run off Belinsky in 14 1-3 innings with a walk, a single by Smith and an infield out in the sixth inning. They got their other when Smith's single drove in Nellie Fox and drove out Belinsky. Art Fowler came on to finish up. The Angels, meanwhile, had put it away in the fourth, getting two runs for a 3-0 lead when Joe Koppe singled with the bases loaded.

Grant (2-0), on furlough from the Army, had a string of 16 2-3 scoreless innings before Moose Skowron accounted for the Yankee's only run with a homer in the eighth. The Indians jumped off to a quick 3-0 lead against Ralph Terry (4-3) with three in the third as Don Dillard homered and John Romano tripled, then used Woodie Held's two-run homer to spark a four-run seventh that iced it.

Cash Clears Park

Foytack (1-0), allowed only one unearned run. A two-run homer by Chico Fernandez off Don Schwall (1-4) in the second inning put the Tigers ahead to stay and Norm Cash made it 3-0 in the sixth with his eighth homer, cracking a roof-clearing shot for only the sixth fair ball ever hit out of Tiger Stadium.

Gene Woodling's grand slam homer was the big blow in the Senators 11-run sixth inning explosion that beat the Orioles. Ten consecutive batters reached base successfully.

The Twins had the tying runs on base when, after an hour's wait, the game was called. The A's had snapped a 3-3 tie in the sixth on singles by Norm Siebern and Gino Cimoli, two walks and an error.

Hold Hudson Man In Shooting Fray; One in Hospital

A 40-year-old Hudson man was in serious condition today, and a 25-year-old neighbor was held on a second degree assault charge in that city, as the aftermath of a shooting incident in their home Friday night.

Hudson Police Chief John J. Sullivan reported that Albert Dandridge, 40, of 439 Columbia Street, that city, and Edward Franklin, 25, same address, engaged in a heated argument in their home last night and Dandridge went to his apartment and got a .38 revolver.

Sullivan said Dandridge fired two shots. Both hit a wall. A scuffle ensued and Franklin grabbed the gun and reportedly shot Dandridge in the stomach and both legs.

City police were notified and Dandridge was taken to the Columbia Memorial Hospital, where his condition was described as fair.

Chief Sullivan said Franklin was later taken into cutody by police, and booked on the assault charge. Arraignment was deferred pending the outcome of Dandridge's condition, police said.

Saugerties Has Backyard Feud; Two Are Arrested

Reminiscent of the feuding Hatfield and McCoys, Saugerties had its own battle between the Martins and the Pekurney's this week and after the clash, one of the Martin clan went to the hospital and two of the Pekurneys were arrested by village police for third degree assault.

The long boundary dispute precipitated into open conflict Thursday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. John Pekurney of First Street were setting old license plates along a three-foot wire fence on the boundary. Mrs. Violet Martin, widow of the Saugerties postmaster, John A. Martin, and their daughter disputed the placing of the license plates along the fence, which she claims is four inches over her property line according to a recent survey.

According to Acting Chief Harold Mills, during the ensuing argument, Mrs. Martin said Mrs. Pekurney grabbed her by the arm and struck Mrs. Martin with one of the old license plates.

Mrs. Martin told police that Mr. Pekurney joined the battle of swinging arms and landed one on Mrs. Martin's nose. After examination by her physician, Mrs. Martin was taken to the hospital for further examination and later released.

The Pekurney's were taken before Acting Police Justice William D. Brinnier for arraignment on a charge of third degree assault. Judge Brinnier adjourned the case for Friday before Village Police Justice G. Thomas Rea Jr.

Judge Rea adjourned the case to 7 p. m. Friday.

Walker Valley Woman Injured in Mishap

A Walker Valley women was injured at about 7:15 p. m. Friday when the car she was driving was involved in a collision at the intersection of Marl and Vosage Roads, Walker Valley, according to Ellenville State Police.

Corporal Michael Bonney said Mrs. Vela Murray, 18, of Walker Valley, was driving her car when it was in collision on a sharp curve with a car driven by Harold Goebel, 17, of Wallkill.

Mrs. Murray suffered lacerations of the forehead, troopers said.

Flames Destroy Old Gardiner Barn Friday

Fire destroyed an old barn on the property of Charles Schaffer, Shaft Road, Town of Gardiner, Friday afternoon, as firemen from three departments fought the flames.

Chief Eugene Corey of the Shawangunk Valley Fire Co., said neighbors summoned firemen from New Paltz and Gardiner Fire companies to the scene.

Corey said the barn was leveled and a quantity of hay was lost in the blaze. The origin of the fire was not immediately determined, Corey said.

What the Common Market Means to You (6). America's Role

President Kennedy has asked Congress for broad powers to reduce tariffs with other nations. Why? Because of the European Common Market.

The Administration argument is:

The Common Market is a going concern. It will be, in effect, one nation (the third largest in wealth) in its dealings with the rest of the world.

30% of America's exports go to Europe. Some of this will be reduced when the Market countries begin producing more and buying more from each other.

High tariffs against European goods will mean less dollars for Europe to buy from America, high tariffs in turn against U.S. goods.

Although still only about half that of America, Europe's standard of living is rising fast. A strong Europe needs both to buy more from and sell more to America.

In world-wide terms, a general movement for tariff reduction is under way. America cannot abdicate the responsibility to help guide it.

Some American industries and workers will be hurt at first. Free trade backers argue, however, that the good effects will far outweigh the bad in the long run.

A prosperous, progressive free world, united in working toward the goal of economic and political opportunity for all peoples, would be a better hope for lasting peace and answer to communism than missiles and atom bombs.

The End.

Wilson Attends Study Meeting On Pollution

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock, attended a meeting of the Temporary State Commission on Water Resources Planning in New York City the past week. He is a member of the commission.

The commission met for the purpose of an exploratory conference on the study of the effect of detergents on the water resources of New York State.

Many experts in the field of sanitary engineering and public health services were present, including Dr. Woodward, U. S. Health Service; Col. A. F. Dappert, New York State Health Department, and Dr. Meredith Thompson of the New York State Health Department.

The possible effects of detergents in water was discussed including some definite method of procedure be developed so that possible threat to human health can be averted. It was noted that not only were detergents to be considered as possible health deterents in the future but also the introduction into the ground of other chemicals.

Although the state in general was discussed, the Counties of Suffolk and Nassau were studied in particular. Representatives from those two counties were present and explained their problems and offered their cooperation in this statewide study. Because of their exploding population with the resulting increase in home building, these counties stand out as prime examples for needed study relative to the preservation of water resources.

The meeting was conducted by Senator Frank E. Vanlare, Rochester, chairman of the Temporary Commission.

Saugerties Firm Awarded Contract For Town Loader

Hudson Valley Equipment Company, Ulster Avenue, Saugerties was awarded the contract for a new town loader Friday afternoon during a special Saugerties Town Board meeting. The board approved the contract for $15,885.

Three bids were received. Although the bid of HO Penn Machinery Company Inc., Poughkeepsie for a Caterpillar 922 loader was the lowest bid, the board ruled that it did not meet specifications because it was smaller in size.

The third bid was submitted by Ken Smith Machinery Co., Albany, who bid $20,105 for a Michigan model 85A.

Hudson Valley made immediate delivery of the new Yale and Towne Trojan loader. Letting of contracts for town highway department equipment must also meet the approval of the County Highway Department.

Two Hurt Today In Hurley Mishap

Two persons were injured at 2:45 a. m. today in a two-car highway accident which occurred on Route 375, Town of Hurley, according to Kingston State Police.

Trooper Thomas J. Crowley said the cars were operated by Harry Smith, 31, of 45 St. James Street, city and Arthur Bostrom, 23, of Oak Hill.

According to a report of Troopers David Wacthel and Carl Robke, Lake Katrine, Smith was driving south on Route 375 and the other vehicle was traveling in the opposite direction when the cars collided.

Passengers in Smith's car were identified in state police reports as Larnel Barber, 18, of 110 Broadway, who received a laceration of the scalp, and Roderick Gray, 23, of 40 Meadow Street, who complained of injuries of the left elbow. The injured were treated at Kingston Hospital and released.

Boy, Apparently Fair

The condition of Wiwal Rybak, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wasyl Rybak of Stone Ridge, who was injured in a bicycle collision with a car on Route 213, Town of Rosendale on Monday night, was described as apparently fair by Kingston Hospital today. State police said the boy came out of a private road and his brakes failed, causing him to crash with a 1958 sedan operated by John W. Waters, 37 of East Aurora, Erie County, who was proceeding east on Route 213.

Business Week in Review

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kennedy administration held out an olive branch toward business during the week and it appeared acceptable.

As a result, the gulf between government and business may narrow.

Would Mean Big Saving

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon advised the Business Council, meeting in Hot Springs, Va., that liberalization of tax depreciation write-offs will be ordered soon.

This is expected to bring an estimated 1962 tax saving of $1.25 billion to businessmen.

Industrialists have been clamoring for greater depreciation credit so they can expand and modernize plants.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. and chairman of the Business Council, called the action very important in restoring confidence in business and improving government-business relations.

Blough said Dillon's message, delivered to the council by Treasury Undersecretary Henry H. Fowler, was very well-received by the 100 corporation heads who make up the group.

President Kennedy and Blough were the main adversaries in the fight in which Kennedy forced a roll-back of a steel price increase initiated by Blough.

Since then the Kennedy administration has been accused of being antibusiness.

Both Must Hold Line

In another development during the week, organized labor got the word from Kennedy that he expects wages as well as profits to hold the noninflation line.

He told the United Auto Workers convention in Atlantic City, N.J.: "Unjustified wage demands which require price increases are equally as contrary to the national interest as unjustified profit demands which require price increases."

And it was a week in which: The Labor Department reported unemployment declined by 200,000 and employment increased 700,000 in April.

Stockholders of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads approved merger of the two giant systems.

In his Atlantic City speech, Kennedy praised the UAW for what he said the administration considers a noninflationary setttlement with the automobile industry last year, but said, "The same responsibility for a noninflationary and peaceful settlement applies both to you and to management in your forthcoming negotiations in the aircraft and missile industries."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther had said earlier that wages should rise faster than productivity at least for the present.

Heads of two big steel companies persisted in their stand that steel price increases are needed to enable the producers to modernize and remain competitive.

Blough Defends Move

Blough, who initiated the $6-a-ton increase last month only to wilt under government pressure, defended his action at the annual stockholders meeting.

He called for harmony between government and business but said it is "incomprehensible" that "government can ever serve the national interest in peacetime by seeking to control prices."

Republic Steel Corp.'s president, T. F. Patton, told his annual meeting that the company "still needs a price increase—as competitive factors permit."

Under questioning at his news conference, Kennedy denied that, in his anger, over the steel price increase, he had made a scorching remark about "all businessmen." He meant it just for some steel industry executives, he said, adding, "That is all past. Now we are working together, I hope."

In other presidential actions affecting business, Kennedy defended his plan for tax withholding on dividends and interest and asked Congress for standby authority to cut individual income taxes temporarily by as much as $10 billion a year to minimize future recessions.

Auto Output Spurts

Automobile production spurted during this week to its highest level of the year—an estimated 157,000 passenger cars. This was 2.2 per cent above the previous high of 153,614 in the week ended April 28. It compared with 149,582 last week and 129,530 in the like week of 1960.

Steel output during the week fell for the fifth consecutive week and major producers indicated further cuts are to come. Production was down to 1,820,000 tons, which represented about 60.5 per cent of the industry's estimated capacity.

Sales on the New York Stock Exchange for the latest week were 18,419,640 shares compared with 19,370,710 the week before. Bond sales on the exchange for the latest week totaled $35,783,000 (par value) against $33,243,0000 a week earlier.

Columbia Marine Gets Four Years In Italy Prison

GENOA, Italy (AP)—An Italian court has sentenced three U.S. Marines to four years in prison on charges of beating and robbing a Genoa woman.

The three, tried in absentia, were identified in court records as Lester Bowen, 19, of Chester, W. Va., Rowald Carter, 19, of Germantown, N.Y., and Robert Wieszchowsky, 22, no known residence.

Police filed charges against the three on April 25, 1960 a week after Ermanna Croese was found unconscious in a dark waterfront alley. Her jaw had been broken, four teeth knocked out, and she suffered a concussion.

Later she told authorities three Americans had beaten her and taken her purse containing 30,000 lire ($48).

Italian police asked the help of U.S. Military Police from four U.S. Navy supply ships then in the harbor.

Bowen was then serving on the Suffolk, Carter on the Pokono and Wieszchowsky on the Marcos. All three were left at liberty after the woman's damage claims were settled privately.

But police pressed the charges, and the trial was held here on Tuesday. If the three Marines ever return to Italy they face arrest and imprisonment.

Italian authorities could ask the United States for their extradition but have not done so.

'Power for Peace' Displayed by U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The military services displayed samples of their best arms and men today in a demonstration of this country's strengthened "power for peace."

The annual worldwide Armed Forces Day observance opened at nearby Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland. Thousands of civilian visitors were expected over the next two days.

During the week ahead, open house will be held at Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine posts, camps, stations, bases and ships around the nation and in many parts of the world.

This 13th annual Armed Forces Day observance features the "power for peace" theme, as have others in the past.

Caretakers Start Campsite Duty Friday, May 25

New York's 43 state-operated public campsites in the Catskill and Adirondack Mountains will be open for the 1962 camping season with a caretaker on duty beginning Friday, May 25, the Conservation Department has announced.

Among the camping areas opening on that date are three in this area: Woodland Valley at Shandaken in Ulster County, and Devils Tombstone and North Lake in Hunter, both in Greene County.

Victor Glider, general manager of the Forest Preserve Parks, reminded campers that reservations cannot be made in advance and permits must be obtained from the resident caretaker in charge. A permit will be issued for up to two weeks on a first come, first served basis and may be renewed if it does not deprive others of an opportunity to camp.

Campers are charged a nominal fee per night for each permit and a small fee for day use privileges including boating, picnicking, swimming, fishing and hiking.

Although all campsites will be ready for the official opening of the camping season on Memorial Day, five areas including Beaverkill in Sullivan County, are now in operation upstate with six more scheduled to open by May 18.

The chair lift at the Belleayre Mountain Ski Center in the Catskills and the Lake George Beach State Park will be open for weekend-only use on May 26. Daily use at these facilities will begin June 23 and June 16 respectively.

Schwenk Extends Thanks to Groups On Fixing Offices

The community service of the Kingston Lions Club, Kaplan Furniture Company and the Miron Building Products Co., Inc. were acknowledged today by Mayor John J. Schwenk who said he wanted to thank them in behalf of the City for their part in rehabilitating the Ulster County Association for Mental Health offices in the Municipal Building at 27 East O'Reilly Street.

The mayor said that the Kingston Lions Club undertook to have the mental health offices painted and equipped with venetion blinds, while Miron Lumber provided asphalt tile and cement for the floors and Kaplan Furniture made available oak chairs for the reception room. Board of Public Works employes were responsible for putting down the asphalt tile flooring, he noted.

The mayor urged all interested citizens to visit the mental health offices at 27 East O'Reilly Street to observe how joint action by service minded individuals and firms can contribute to improved community social services.

Woman Fined $25 For Shoplifting

A downtown woman arrested Friday night for shoplifting at a North Front Street store was fined $25 today in City Court and received a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

Ann K. Davis, 20, of 14 Ann Street was charged with petit larcency by Richard Rebout, operating manager of the Montgomery Ward Company store, who claimed she stole a skirt and blouse worth $8.95 Friday about 7:30 p. m.

City Judge Joseph D. Saccoman pronounced sentence this morning and gave the woman, employed as a domestic, until Monday to pay her fine.

Ask for Referee To Judge Case For $4 Million

An Albany attorney, Ernest B. Morris, who is being sued by his former wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, for $4 million has asked Supreme Court Justice William Deckelman in lieu of dismissal of the suit to have the matter aired before an official referee rather than have it argued in a jury trial.

N. LeVan Haver, attorney for Morris, told Justice Deckleman the matter should be referred to a referee rather than go through " a lengthy and notoriously unpleasant trial."

Morris Simon of Troy, counsel for Mrs. Elizabeth Morris of Albany said she should "be given a day in open court before a jury."

The couple were married 32 years ago. Mr. Morris obtained a Mexican divorce last August and married Mrs. Ida M. Middaugh of Latham, who also obtained a Mexican divorce.

Justice Deckelman gave parties until May 28 to file briefs and memorandums of law.

Mr. Morris sought to have the suit dismissed on the grounds it stated no cause of action. Mrs. Morris seeks to have both a separation agreement and his Mexican divorce set aside. She also seeks to be declared his "legal" wife.

Union Will Vote Tuesday on Pact For 500 Bakers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A union membership meeting of 500 striking bakery workers will be held Tuesday to vote on a tentative agreement negotiated by representatives of the union and the four struck companies.

The agreement was reached Friday, but terms were not disclosed. At the time of the walkout last Saturday, officials of Local 429 of the Bakery & Confectionary Workers Union said the issues were job security and working conditions.

The National Biscuit Co., Continental Baking Co., Interstate Bakeries Corp. and General Baking Co. are the bakeries involved, but Interstate, using supervisory employes in place of striking workers, has been operating at full capacity through most of the strike.

Pays Only Dime To Cross Bridge; Cites Old Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Roger J. Jeeves' claim that he should pay only a dime to cross the Grand Island bridges is baseless, the New York State Thruway Authority says.

Jeeves, of Grand Island refused to pay the usual quarter Wednesday night, contending that Congress set the toll at 25 cents for the original bridge until the span was paid for, "and thereafter at a reduced rate not to exceed the maintenance and cost of the operation in an economical manner."

The Thruway Authority said Friday that when it purchased the two Niagara River bridges in 1950, it also acquired the right to set a "reasonable" toll.

Jeeves left his name and address with a toll collector so state troopers could find him. He will appear before a peace justice next week for failure to pay the 25-cent toll.

Jeeves argued that "the toll was never reduced, although the bridges were paid for long before they were turned over to the Thruway Authority."

There may have been some federal involvement at one time, but that is no longer in effect," the Authority countered.

The State Thruway crosses Grand Island, between Buffalo and Niagara Falls. The bridges cross the east branch of the river at the north and south ends of the island.

A Thruway spokesman pointed out that Jeeves could buy a book of 30 tickets for $2.50.

"This would work out to something less than a dime a trip," the spkesman said. "He's overpaving us under his own conditions."

Hold Hudson Man In Shooting Fray; One in Hospital

A 40-year-old Hudson man was in serious condition today, and a 25-year-old neighbor was held on a second degree assault charge in that city, as the aftermath of a shooting incident in their home Friday night.

Hudson Police Chief John J. Sullivan reported that Albert Dandridge, 40, of 439 Columbia Street, that city, and Edward Franklin, 25, same address, engaged in a heated argument in their home last night and Dandridge went to his apartment and got a .38 revolver.

Sullivan said Dandridge fired two shots. Both hit a wall. A scuffle ensued and Franklin grabbed the gun and reportedly shot Dandridge in the stomach and both legs.

City police were notified and Dandridge was taken to the Columbia Memorial Hospital, where his condition was described as fair.

Chief Sullivan said Franklin was later taken into cutody by police, and booked on the assault charge. Arraignment was deferred pending the outcome of Dandridge's condition, police said.

Saugerties Has Backyard Feud; Two Are Arrested

Reminiscent of the feuding Hatfield and McCoys, Saugerties had its own battle between the Martins and the Pekurney's this week and after the clash, one of the Martin clan went to the hospital and two of the Pekurneys were arrested by village police for third degree assault.

The long boundary dispute precipitated into open conflict Thursday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. John Pekurney of First Street were setting old license plates along a three-foot wire fence on the boundary. Mrs. Violet Martin, widow of the Saugerties postmaster, John A. Martin, and their daughter disputed the placing of the license plates along the fence, which she claims is four inches over her property line according to a recent survey.

According to Acting Chief Harold Mills, during the ensuing argument, Mrs. Martin said Mrs. Pekurney grabbed her by the arm and struck Mrs. Martin with one of the old license plates.

Mrs. Martin told police that Mr. Pekurney joined the battle of swinging arms and landed one on Mrs. Martin's nose. After examination by her physician, Mrs. Martin was taken to the hospital for further examination and later released.

The Pekurney's were taken before Acting Police Justice William D. Brinnier for arraignment on a charge of third degree assault. Judge Brinnier adjourned the case for Friday before Village Police Justice G. Thomas Rea Jr.

Judge Rea adjourned the case to 7 p. m. Friday.

Walker Valley Woman Injured in Mishap

A Walker Valley women was injured at about 7:15 p. m. Friday when the car she was driving was involved in a collision at the intersection of Marl and Vosage Roads, Walker Valley, according to Ellenville State Police.

Corporal Michael Bonney said Mrs. Vela Murray, 18, of Walker Valley, was driving her car when it was in collision on a sharp curve with a car driven by Harold Goebel, 17, of Wallkill.

Mrs. Murray suffered lacerations of the forehead, troopers said.

Flames Destroy Old Gardiner Barn Friday

Fire destroyed an old barn on the property of Charles Schaffer, Shaft Road, Town of Gardiner, Friday afternoon, as firemen from three departments fought the flames.

Chief Eugene Corey of the Shawangunk Valley Fire Co., said neighbors summoned firemen from New Paltz and Gardiner Fire companies to the scene.

Corey said the barn was leveled and a quantity of hay was lost in the blaze. The origin of the fire was not immediately determined, Corey said.

What the Common Market Means to You (6). America's Role

President Kennedy has asked Congress for broad powers to reduce tariffs with other nations. Why? Because of the European Common Market.

The Administration argument is:

The Common Market is a going concern. It will be, in effect, one nation (the third largest in wealth) in its dealings with the rest of the world.

30% of America's exports go to Europe. Some of this will be reduced when the Market countries begin producing more and buying more from each other.

High tariffs against European goods will mean less dollars for Europe to buy from America, high tariffs in turn against U.S. goods.

Although still only about half that of America, Europe's standard of living is rising fast. A strong Europe needs both to buy more from, and sell more to America.

In world-wide terms, a general movement for tariff reduction is under way. America cannot abdicate the responsibility to help guide it.

Some American industries and workers will be hurt at first. Free trade backers argue, however, that the good effects will far outweigh the bad in the long run.

A prosperous, progressive free world, united in working toward the goal of economic and political opportunity for all peoples, would be a better hope for lasting peace and answer to communism than missiles and atom bombs.

The End.

Wilson Attends Study Meeting On Pollution

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock, attended a meeting of the Temporary State Commission on Water Resources Planning in New York City the past week. He is a member of the commission.

The commission met for the purpose of an exploratory conference on the study of the effect of detergents on the water resources of New York State.

Many experts in the field of sanitary engineering and public health services were present, including Dr. Woodward, U. S. Health Service; Col. A. F. Dappert, New York State Health Department, and Dr. Meredith Thompson of the New York State Health Department.

The possible effects of detergents in water was discussed including some definite method of procedure be developed so that possible threat to human health can be averted. It was noted that not only were detergents to be considered as possible health deterents in the future but also the introduction into the ground of other chemicals.

Although the state in general was discussed, the Counties of Suffolk and Nassau were studied in particular. Representatives from those two counties were present and explained their problems and offered their cooperation in this statewide study. Because of their exploding population with the resulting increase in home building, these counties stand out as prime examples for needed study relative to the preservation of water resources.

The meeting was conducted by Senator Frank E. Vanlare, Rochester, chairman of the Temporary Commission.

Saugerties Firm Awarded Contract For Town Loader

Hudson Valley Equipment Company, Ulster Avenue, Saugerties was awarded the contract for a new town loader Friday afternoon during a special Saugerties Town Board meeting. The board approved the contract for $15,885.

Three bids were received. Although the bid of HO Penn Machinery Company Inc., Poughkeepsie for a Caterpillar 922 loader was the lowest bid, the board ruled that it did not meet specifications because it was smaller in size.

The third bid was submitted by Ken Smith Machinery Co., Albany, who bid $20,105 for a Michigan model 85A.

Hudson Valley made immediate delivery of the new Yale and Towne Trojan loader. Letting of contracts for town highway department equipment must also meet the approval of the County Highway Department.

Business Week in Review

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kennedy administration held out an olive branch toward business during the week and it appeared acceptable.

As a result, the gulf between government and business may narrow.

Would Mean Big Saving

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon advised the Business Council, meeting in Hot Springs, Va., that liberalization of tax depreciation write-offs will be ordered soon.

This is expected to bring an estimated 1962 tax saving of $1.25 billion to businessmen.

Industrialists have been clamoring for greater depreciation credit so they can expand and modernize plants.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. and chairman of the Business Council, called the action very important in restoring confidence in business and improving government-business relations.

Blough said Dillon's message, delivered to the council by Treasury Undersecretary Henry H. Fowler, was very well-received by the 100 corporation heads who make up the group.

President Kennedy and Blough were the main adversaries in the fight in which Kennedy forced a roll-back of a steel price increase initiated by Blough.

Since then the Kennedy administration has been accused of being antibusiness.

Both Must Hold Line

In another development during the week, organized labor got the word from Kennedy that he expects wages as well as profits to hold the noninflation line.

He told the United Auto Workers convention in Atlantic City, N.J.: "Unjustified wage demands which require price increases are equally as contrary to the national interest as unjustified profit demands which require price increases."

And it was a week in which: The Labor Department reported unemployment declined by 700,000 and employment increased 700,000 in April.

Stockholders of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads approved merger of the two giant systems.

In his Atlantic City speech, Kennedy praised the UAW for what he said the administration considers a noninflationary setttlement with the automobile industry last year, but said, "The same responsibility for a noninflationary and peaceful settlement applies both to you and to management in your forthcoming negotiations in the aircraft and missile industries."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther had said earlier that wages should rise faster than productivity at least for the present.

Heads of two big steel companies persisted in their stand that steel price increases are needed to enable the producers to modernize and remain competitive.

Blough Defends Move

Blough, who initiated the $6-a-ton increase last month only to wilt under government pressure, defended his action at the annual stockholders meeting.

He called for harmony between government and business but said it is "incomprehensible" that "government can ever serve the national interest in peacetime by seeking to control prices."

Republic Steel Corp.'s president, T. F. Patton, told his annual meeting that the company "still needs a price increase—as competitive factors permit."

Under questioning at his news conference, Kennedy denied that, in his anger, over the steel price increase, he had made a scorching remark about "all businessmen." He meant it just for some steel industry executives, he said, adding, "That is all past. Now we are working together, I hope."

In other presidential actions affecting business, Kennedy defended his plan for tax withholding on dividends and interest and asked Congress for standby authority to cut individual income taxes temporarily by as much as $10 billion a year to minimize future recessions.

Auto Output Spurts

Automobile production spurted during this week to its highest level of the year—an estimated 157,000 passenger cars. This was 2.2 per cent above the previous high of 153,614 in the week ended April 28. It compared with 149,582 last week and 129,530 in the like week of 1960.

Steel output during the week fell for the fifth consecutive week and major producers indicated further cuts are to come. Production was down to 1,820,000 tons, which represented about 60.5 per cent of the industry's estimated capacity.

Sales on the New York Stock Exchange for the latest week were 18,419,640 shares compared with 19,370,710 the week before. Bond sales on the exchange for the latest week totaled $35,783,000 (par value) against $33,243,0000 a week earlier.

Columbia Marine Gets Four Years In Italy Prison

GENOA, Italy (AP)—An Italian court has sentenced three U.S. Marines to four years in prison on charges of beating and robbing a Genoa woman.

The three, tried in absentia, were identified in court records as Lester Bowen, 19, of Chester, W. Va., Rowald Carter, 19, of Germantown, N.Y., and Robert Wieszchowsky, 22, no known residence.

Police filed charges against the three on April 25, 1960 a week after Ermanna Croese was found unconscious in a dark waterfront alley. Her jaw had been broken, four teeth knocked out, and she suffered a concussion.

Later she told authorities three Americans had beaten her and taken her purse containing 30,000 lire ($48).

Italian police asked the help of U.S. Military Police from four U.S. Navy supply ships then in the harbor.

Bowen was then serving on the Suffolk, Carter on the Pokono and Wieszchowsky on the Marcos. All three were left at liberty after the woman's damage claims were settled privately.

But police pressed the charges, and the trial was held here on Tuesday. If the three Marines ever return to Italy they face arrest and imprisonment.

Italian authorities could ask the United States for their extradition but have not done so.

Caretakers Start Campsite Duty Friday, May 25

New York's 43 state-operated public campsites in the Catskill and Adirondack Mountains will be open for the 1962 camping season with a caretaker on duty beginning Friday, May 25, the Conservation Department has announced.

Among the camping areas opening on that date are three in this area: Woodland Valley at Shandaken in Ulster County, and Devils Tombstone and North Lake in Hunter, both in Greene County.

Victor Glider, general manager of the Forest Preserve Parks, reminded campers that reservations cannot be made in advance and permits must be obtained from the resident caretaker in charge. A permit will be issued for up to two weeks on a first come, first served basis and may be renewed if it does not deprive others of an opportunity to camp.

Campers are charged a nominal fee per night for each permit and a small fee for day use privileges including boating, picnicking, swimming, fishing and hiking.

Although all campsites will be ready for the official opening of the camping season on Memorial Day, five areas including Beaverkill in Sullivan County, are now in operation upstate with six more scheduled to open by May 18.

The chair lift at the Belleayre Mountain Ski Center in the Catskills and the Lake George Beach State Park will be open for weekend-only use on May 26. Daily use at these facilities will begin June 23 and June 16 respectively.
